

radiological impact on members of the public or workers. There are three phases of Project Pele demonstration that could result in radiological emissions: Startup testing, operational testing, and post-irradiation examination prior to disposition of the mobile microreactor. The analysis showed that the annual radiological air emissions from the mobile microreactor during these phases are expected to be no more than the quantities emitted during normal INL Site operations, which, as stated previously, are well within regulatory and guidelines. As described in the Final EIS, the analysis of impacts is applicable to (i.e., bounds) whichever of the two candidate mobile microreactor designs is selected.

Environmentally Preferable Alternative

The environmentally preferable alternative is the No Action Alternative. Under the No Action Alternative, prototype mobile microreactor construction and demonstration would not occur, resulting in fewer impacts than under the Proposed Action. However, the No Action Alternative would not meet the purpose and need for construction and demonstration of a prototype mobile microreactor.

Comments on the Final Construction and Demonstration of a Prototype Mobile Reactor EIS

SCO posted the Final EIS and Comment Response Document on the project website <https://www.mobilemicroreactoreis.com> and EPA published a Notice of Availability in the Federal Register (87 FR 10784, February 25, 2022). In response to these Notices, SCO received seven (7) comments related to the Final EIS, including comments wanting to know more about the project, requests from individuals wanting to be added to the mailing list, and comments expressing concerns with the potential impacts of the action. SCO considered all of these comments during the preparation of this ROD. SCO has concluded that none of the comments identified a need for further NEPA analysis.

Decision

Subject to the availability of appropriations, SCO's decision is to implement the Proposed Action (the preferred alternative) as described in the Final EIS. The final design determination by SCO is being made through a competitive down-select review process between the two designs and will be announced publicly through other official channels. As described in the Final EIS, the analysis of impacts is applicable to (i.e., bounds) whichever one of the two candidate mobile microreactor designs is selected. All facility options considered at the INL Site are reasonable and have similar environmental impacts; therefore, SCO is not making decisions related to the INL Site facilities options to be used to (1) conduct mobile microreactor core fueling and final assembly (HFEF or TREAT); (2) conduct mobile microreactor startup testing (MFC or CITRC); and (3) temporarily store the mobile microreactor (RSWF or ORSA). These facility options are all encompassed within the preferred alternative decision and were fully evaluated in the Final EIS. Selection of facility options will not substantially change the findings discussed in this ROD. As bounded by the applicable analysis of impacts within the Final EIS, SCO's selection of facilities for the demonstration will be informed by the final design determination.

Basis for the Decision

The Final EIS provided the SCO decision-maker with important information regarding potential environmental impacts of alternatives and options for satisfying the purpose and need. In addition to environmental information, SCO also considered public comments, statutory responsibilities, strategic objectives, technology needs, safeguards and security, cost, and schedule in its decision making.

Mitigation Measures

No potential adverse impacts were identified that would require additional mitigation measures beyond those required by regulations, permits, and agreements or achieved through design features or best management practices. However, if mitigation measures above and beyond those required by regulations, permits, and agreements are identified to reduce impacts during implementation, they would be developed, documented, and executed.
