

Annual Responses: 43,980.

Average Burden per Response: 15 minutes.

The International Military Student Information (IMSI) that is collected on the SAN is used by the International Military Student Officer (IMSO) assigned to each training installation to prepare for the arrival and stay in the U.S. of the international training student. The collection of this information, in addition to the above, is for the issuance of invitational travel orders, student screening purposes, and to determine the student's likes and dislikes; his/her recreation activities; dietary restrictions; etc.

The Security Cooperation Organization/Officer (SCO) collects the biographical data from International Military Students (IMS) to populate data tables in the SC-TMS. SCOs collect this information over the phone and/or in person. SCOs may access the system via username and password or if they are active DoD (civilian, military or contractor) members through CAC and pin. Data may also be collected from automated uploads from the Regional Center Persons Activity Management System (RCPAMS) and Defense Security Assistance Management System (DSAMS) DoD systems, however majority of IMS data is input directly into SCTMS by the SCO. Using the Security Cooperation-Training Management System (SC-TMS) that is hosted on the Security Assistance Network (SANWeb), the SCO enters the collected biographical data.

The IMS trains at United States Military schoolhouses. The IMSO at the schoolhouse/training activity logs onto SC-TMS to view the IMSI data and uses it to support the IMS while during their arrival and stay for training.

Needs and Uses: To augment efforts focused on integrated primary prevention (IPP), DoD is hiring about 2,500 IPP personnel comprised of full-time personnel (herein called the Integrated Primary Prevention Workforce or IPPW) and part-time or support personnel. As this significant investment in prevention unfolds, a DoD-sponsored evaluation is necessary to track the progress and impact of these new personnel, as well as identify any mid-course corrections that should be made to the hiring, orientation, or integration process to maximize the impacts of this investment. Hiring these new personnel was recommended by the Independent Review Committee (IRC) on Sexual Assault in the Military and endorsed by Secretary of Defense as a priority for DoD (Recommendation 2.2: Establish a dedicated primary prevention workforce). Thus, this project will provide support to decision makers and leaders within the DoD and external to DoD (e.g., IRC members) as well as the service branches and installations that hire and integrate the new personnel.
