History and Description of the Remains

Prior to 1925, human remains representing, at minimum, two individuals (Accession RMM A3–74 and RMM A9–26) were removed from unknown locations likely in Southern California. The collector (1844–1911) was a founding donor of the Museum of Riverside. In 1900, the collector moved to Southern California, and in 1901, he began collecting Indian baskets, artifacts, and human remains. In 1925, the human remains were donated by the collector's family to the Museum. The human remains include one skull and mandible (A3–74) and one piece of bone embedded in asphaltum with 86 beige colored shell beads (A9–26). Structural analysis of the skull and mandible concluded that the human remains were likely female and of Native American ancestry. No known individual was identified. No associated funerary objects are present.

Available information suggests these human remains were removed from Southern California based on collection practices and donor records. With no additional information available, this geographic information likely traces a relationship of shared group identity between the human remains and The Tribes.

Determinations Made by the Museum of Riverside

Officials of the Museum of Riverside have determined that:

- Pursuant to 25 U.S.C. 3001(9), the human remains described in this notice represent the physical remains of two individuals of Native American ancestry.

- Pursuant to 25 U.S.C. 3001(2), there is a relationship of shared group identity that can be reasonably traced between the Native American human remains and The Tribes.
