

down as follows: 59 individuals/drivers, 24 schools/school districts, the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation, and the ODE. Most of those expressing support for the application—primarily individuals/drivers or training schools in the State of Ohio—repeatedly commented that the ODE training regulations for school bus drivers in Ohio already exceed the requirements set forth in the impending Federal ELDT regulations.

The Commercial Vehicle Training Association (CVTA) and the National Association of Publicly Funded Truck Driving Schools (NAPFTDS), opposed the request. Also, Ancora Education and Roehl Transportation (Ancora/Roehl) expressed opposition to the request. In their jointly submitted comments, the CVTA and NAPFTDS stated: “The safety of children being transported to and from school is not negotiable and should not be part of any discussion that does not adhere to the highest level of commercial driver and passenger training standards. The ELDT rule was created for this very purpose. The ELDT rule seeks to improve the quality of CDL training and the safety of drivers nationwide by mandating uniform standards that apply to all new CDL applicants. The ODE must be held to the same standard as all other entities, especially those who transport children.”

Ancora/Roehl also opposed application in their jointly filed comments, stating: “The petitioners claim that Ohio Pre-Service theory and BTW meet or exceed all Federal standards and that they should be exempt from ELDT. We believe that in the interest of transparency, improving safety on our busy roads that they should be held to the same rules as everyone else. If the ODE does, in fact, ‘meet and exceed’ the ELDT requirements there is no reason as to why they cannot participate in the Training Provider Registry (TPR) as any other training provider. If FMCSA, grants this exemption we fear that this will lead to more exemptions, further exposing our children to unsafe drivers and road conditions.” Four other commenters offered no position either for or against the ODE request, including the National School Transportation Association.

VI. FMCSA Safety Analysis and Decision

FMCSA evaluated the ODE application and the public comments and denies the exemption request. When the Agency originally established the ELDT rule, the Entry-Level Driver Training Advisory Committee agreed to the rule’s core provisions through the Negotiated Rulemaking process. Furthermore, the Moving Ahead for Progress in the 21st Century (MAP-21) legislative statute which mandated the establishment of this rule, did include the passenger (P) endorsement within the scope of required ELDT. In light of the fact that 49 CFR part 383 currently requires that anyone seeking to obtain an S endorsement must also obtain a P endorsement, including the S endorsement training requirements in the ELDT final rule is entirely consistent with MAP-21. FMCSA believes that the S curriculum in the final rule will improve safety by providing a more complete approach to training that involves the transportation of all CMV passengers, including school children.

FMCSA does not believe the ELDT rule unduly burdens those jurisdictions that already maintain reasonable S training requirements. States or localities currently requiring that school bus drivers obtain S training that meets or exceeds the minimum standard established by the ELDT rule will be minimally impacted because the rule does not impose additional training requirements on those programs. Any provider who currently offers S endorsement training that is equivalent to, or more stringent than, the curriculum set forth in the ELDT rule is eligible for listing on the TPR, presuming all instructor qualifications and other requirements are met. Entities eligible for listing on the TPR include, for example, individual school districts, State agencies or departments, and third parties that contract with States or localities. The two commenters in opposition CVTA/NAPFTDS and Ancora/Roehl commented to these same points, and the Agency concurs with these commenters.

The ODE application does not provide an analysis of the safety impacts the requested exemption from the ELDT regulations may cause, and also does not provide adequate countermeasures to be undertaken to ensure that the exemption would likely achieve a level of safety equivalent to, or greater than, the level that would be achieved by the current regulations. Furthermore, through the Negotiated Rulemaking process, and the normal Agency notice and comment process for finalizing the ELDT rule, these provisions were agreed upon by the participants.

For these reasons, FMCSA denies the request for exemption.

Deputy Administrator.
