

compensation, including wages and salaries, and benefits, (2) compensation trends, and (3) the incidence of employer-sponsored benefits among workers. The NCS also collects data and produces estimates on the provisions of selected employer-sponsored benefit plans. The NCS produces:

- Indexes measuring change over time in labor costs through the Employment Cost Index (ECI), a Principal Federal Economic Indicator (PFEI).
- The level of average costs per hour worked through the Employer Costs for Employee Compensation (ECEC).
- Estimates on the incidence of benefits by the percentage of workers with access to and participating in employer-sponsored benefit plans, as well as details of what those plans provide, in the publication of the Employee Benefits in the United States.
- Details of employer-provided health and retirement plan provisions in the Health and Retirement Plan Provision publications.
- Occupational wage data by work level for use by the President's Pay Agent, meeting the requirements of the Federal Employees Pay Comparability Act of 1990 (FEPCA). This data is produced in collaboration with the BLS' Occupational Employment and Wage Statistics (OEWS) program.

II. Current Action

Office of Management and Budget clearance is being sought for a revision of the NCS.

The NCS is designed to be a national representative survey of private industry and state and local government establishments from all 50 states and the District of Columbia. The NCS private industry sample is on a three-year rotational cycle, with one frozen sample year approximately every ten years for the NCS private industry sample when a new NCS State and local government sample is under collection.

The NCS collects occupational information and wage and benefit data from a sample of employers. Using probability sampling, the NCS selects up to eight jobs at an establishment and collects job information, including job duties and work level characteristics, and wages and benefit information. Benefit information includes the incidence, costs, and provisions of the employer-provided benefits. The BLS updates the wage and benefit cost data quarterly. Updating this information allows for the publication of change in the cost of wages, benefits, and total compensation on a quarterly basis as a measure of labor market inflation.

The NCS employs various methods to collect data from establishments. NCS policy is to collect the data in whichever form is easiest for the respondents to provide. Respondents may choose to send the data on forms that the BLS provides. The respondents may respond through email, fax, mail, telephone, or a secure BLS website.

The BLS is planning to eliminate several NCS data elements to reduce the annual costs and burden of the survey. The data elements are not considered to be heavily used or in public demand based on metrics from public database hits and customer service inquiries. The collection and review of these elements are resource intensive. The elements planned for removal capture:

- The presence of and plan details for sick leave carry over.
- The presence of retiree life.
- The presence of third-party plan administration and stop loss protection for health insurance.
- Employee non-medical premiums.
- Employer non-medical premiums when expenditures are collected or costs are unknown.
- Plan details for Defined Benefit Frozen Plans.
- The presence of Other Benefits plans or provisions of plans.

The BLS is planning to discontinue the collection of Worker's Compensation Insurance due to the BLS's inability to improve the currently low response rate for this benefit. Further response efforts could potentially lead to lower response rates for other benefits, which make up a larger proportion of total compensation.

The BLS is also planning a re-weight of the ECI to update employment counts as was done multiple times in the past.
