

which they stated have indicated no complaints for that pest. The commenters attributed the trouble-free pineapple export record to pest management practices in Indonesia.

We did not consider standard agricultural practices, such as field mitigations that would control B. dorsalis, or, in fact, the application of any other mitigations, in developing the pest risk assessment, unless we could conclusively associate them with commercial production of pineapples in Indonesia. We did identify culling and washing as standard commercial practices used within Indonesia for commercially produced pineapple.

We acknowledge that the likelihood of B. dorsalis entering with the commodity may be Low as it mainly infests damaged or overripe fruit. APHIS rated the pest risk potential as Medium in the pest risk assessment, however, due to the High likelihood of establishment in the United States and the unacceptable risk posed by an introduction of B. dorsalis on U.S. agriculture. Additionally, and as mentioned in the RMD, B. dorsalis is far less likely to attack and develop in pineapples of the Smooth Cayenne variety, or those with Smooth Cayenne parentage. Further, commercial practices, such as culling of damaged fruit, will further reduce the likelihood that B. dorsalis will enter the United States on fresh pineapple fruit from Indonesia. Thus, APHIS determined that a revision to the risk classification for B. dorsalis was not warranted.

Some commenters indicated that commercial irradiation and vapor heat treatment facilities for quarantine treatment of plants are not present in Indonesia, so the commodities would need to be treated in the United States. One commenter requested that APHIS consider recognizing and certifying irradiation facilities in Indonesia.

As stated in the RMD, APHIS notes that irradiation, carried out in accordance with the provisions of 7 CFR part 305, which contains our regulations governing phytosanitary treatments, is approved as a treatment for any imported regulated article. In this regard, 305.9 stipulates the required certifications, agreements, workplans, preclearance notifications, and payment for inspection and monitoring of irradiation facilities located in foreign countries. Likewise, vapor heat treatment may be conducted in facilities in foreign countries, if the facility has been approved by APHIS in accordance with 305.8 and treatment is conducted in accordance with that section. APHIS can assess whether these provisions have been met when Indonesia's NPPO considers Indonesia to have facilities that would meet the requirements of the regulations.

Therefore, in accordance with § 319.56–4(c)(3)(iii), we are announcing our decision to authorize the importation into the United States of fresh pineapple fruit (Ananas comosus) with or without the crown for consumption from Indonesia subject to the phytosanitary measures identified in the updated RMD that accompanied the initial notice.

These conditions will be listed in the USDA, APHIS ACIR database (<https://acir.aphis.usda.gov/s/>). In addition to these specific measures, each shipment must be subject to the general requirements listed in § 319.56–3 that are applicable to the importation of all fruits and vegetables.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Title: Certificates of Medical Examination.

OMB Number: 0583–0167.

Type of Request: Renewal of an approved information collection.

Abstract: FSIS has been delegated the authority to exercise the functions of the Secretary (7 CFR 2.18, 2.53), as specified in the Federal Meat Inspection Act (FMIA) (21 U.S.C. 601, et seq.), the Poultry Products Inspection Act (PPIA) (21 U.S.C. 451, et seq.), and the Egg Products Inspection Act (EPIA) (21 U.S.C. 1031, et seq.). These statutes mandate that FSIS protect the public by verifying that meat, poultry, and egg products are safe, wholesome, and properly labeled.

FSIS is requesting renewal of an approved information collection regarding certificates of medical examination. The approval for this information collection will expire on November 30, 2025. FSIS is making no changes to the existing information collection.

The current information collection approval includes two FSIS forms that are completed by healthcare providers for medication certification. First, FSIS uses Form 4339–1, “Certificate of Medical Examination (with Medical History)” to determine whether an applicant for a Food Inspector, Consumer Safety Inspector, or Veterinary Medical Officer in-plant position meets the medical qualification standards for the position approved by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM). The certificates of medical examination ensure accurate collection of the required data. The OPM-approved medical qualification standards apply only to positions in FSIS, not positions in other Federal agencies. When requesting that applicants for the positions listed above undergo the medical examination, a representative of FSIS notifies the applicants in writing of the reasons for the examination, the process, and the consequences of the failure to report for an examination or provide medical documentation. Any physical condition that would hinder an individual’s full, efficient, and safe performance of his or her duties is considered disqualifying for employment, except when the individual presents convincing evidence that he or she can perform the essential functions of the job efficiently and without hazard.

Second, FSIS uses Form 4306–5, “Medical Documentation for Employee’s Reasonable Accommodation Request,” to help determine whether the Agency will provide reasonable accommodation to qualified individuals. In accordance with the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Americans with Disabilities Act Amendments Act of 2008, FSIS makes reasonable accommodations for the known physical or mental limitations of qualified individuals with disabilities, unless the accommodation would impose an undue hardship on the operation of FSIS. FSIS requires medical information from a health care provider to determine whether the person’s condition rises to the level of disability under the law and to determine whether the limitations can be effectively accommodated.

FSIS has made the following estimates based upon an information collection assessment:

Respondents: Health Care Providers.

Estimated Total Number of Annual

Respondents: 1,250 respondents.

Estimated Number of Responses per Respondent: 1.

Estimated Total Annual Burden on

Respondents: 1,542 hours.

All responses to this notice will be summarized and included in the request for OMB approval. All comments will also become a matter of public record. Copies of this information collection assessment can be obtained from Gina Kouba, Office of Policy and Program Development, Food Safety and Inspection Service, USDA, 1400 Independence Avenue SW, Mailstop 3758, South Building, Washington, DC 20250–3700; 202–720–5046.

Comments are invited on: (a) whether the proposed collection of information is necessary for the proper performance of FSIS’ functions, including whether the information will have practical utility; (b) the accuracy of FSIS’ estimate of the burden of the proposed collection of information, including the validity of the method and assumptions used; (c) ways to enhance the quality, utility, and clarity of the information to be collected; and (d) ways to minimize the burden of the collection of information, including through the use of appropriate automated, electronic, mechanical, or other technological collection techniques, or other forms of information technology. Comments may be sent to both FSIS, at the addresses provided above, and the Desk Officer for Agriculture, Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, Office of Management and Budget (OMB), Washington, DC 20253.
