Abstract of Information Available

Based on the information available, human remains representing, at least, one individual have been reasonably identified and were removed from the Sandhill Site (47–JU–0428), Juneau County, WI. In 1966, G. Richard Peske, then instructor at Wisconsin State University—Oshkosh (WSU–O), now University of Wisconsin Oshkosh (UWO), was called to a mound site by Chuck Spindler. Peske's incomplete field notes from August 24, 1966, record that someone had dug into the top of the conical mound, "looking for pots" and "uncovering a burial." Peske and Spindler conducted four shovel tests around the mound, while also recovering cultural material and human remains from the mound. The five associated funerary objects are one graver, two lots of undecorated grit tempered body sherds, one lot of mammal bone, and one lot of debitage. UWO has no knowledge or record of any potentially hazardous substances used to treat the human remains or associated funerary objects.

Based on the information available, human remains representing, at least, three individuals have been reasonably identified and were removed from the Grignon #1 (47–WN–0118) and Grignon #2 (47–WN–0119) sites, Winnebago County, WI. This site complex was originally investigated by G. Richard Peske in 1966. Later, in the 1970s when Dr. Alaric Faulkner reported the site to the Wisconsin Historical Society, he separated the location into two components which included a village site (Grignon #1 47–WN–0118/BWN–0193) and burial site (Grignon #2 47–WN–0119/BWN–0153). In 2024, collections held by the University of Wisconsin Milwaukee that were removed from Grignon #1 and #2 were legally transferred to the UWO to be included in the repatriation process, per tribal guidance. The 54 associated funerary objects are one lot of ceramics (missing); one post contact Kaolin pipe
