II. Background

On January 18, 2011, President Obama issued E.O. 13563, "Improving

Regulation and Regulatory Review.” Executive Order 13563 directs Federal agencies to develop and submit a preliminary plan “under which the agency will periodically review its existing significant regulations to determine whether any such regulations should be modified, streamlined, expanded, or repealed so as to make the agency’s regulatory program more effective or less burdensome in achieving the regulatory objectives.” Executive Order 13563 did not, however, apply to independent regulatory agencies. Subsequently, on July 11, 2011, the President issued E.O. 13579, which recommends that independent regulatory agencies also develop retrospective plans similar to those required of other agencies under E.O. 13563. In the spirit of cooperation, in November 2011, in response to E.O. 13579, the NRC made available an initial Plan on the NRC’s Public Web site. The NRC has now updated its initial Plan and has created a draft Plan. The draft Plan is available at the following locations: (1) On the NRC’s Open Government Web page at <http://www.nrc.gov/public-involve/open.html> (under the tabs entitled “Selected NRC Resources” and “Rulemaking”); (2) on the NRC’s plans, budget, and performance Web page at <http://www.nrc.gov/about-nrc/plans-performance.html>; and (3) on <http://www.regulations.gov>. The NRC is accepting public comment on this draft Plan.

III. Plan for Retrospective Review

The NRC’s draft Plan describes the NRC’s processes and activities relating to retrospective review of existing regulations, including discussions of the: (1) Efforts to incorporate risk assessments into regulatory decisionmaking; (2) efforts to address the cumulative effects of regulation; (3) the NRC’s methodology for prioritizing its rulemaking activities; (4) rulemaking initiatives arising out of the NRC’s ongoing review of its regulations related to the recent events at the Fukushima Dai-ichi Nuclear Power Plant in Japan; and (5) the NRC’s previous and ongoing efforts to update its regulations in a systematic, ongoing basis.

For the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Dated at Rockville, Maryland, this 16th day of November 2012.

Annette L. Vietti-Cook,

Secretary of the Commission.

I. Background

Stress testing is a tool that helps both bank supervisors and a banking organization measure the sufficiency of capital available to support the banking organization’s operations throughout periods of stress.¹ The Board and the other federal banking agencies previously have highlighted the use of stress testing as a means to better understand the range of a banking organization’s potential risk exposures.²

¹ A full assessment of a company’s capital adequacy must take into account a range of risk factors, including those that are specific to a particular industry or company.

² See, e.g., Supervisory Guidance on Stress Testing for Banking Organizations With More Than

In particular, as part of its effort to stabilize the U.S. financial system during the 2007–2009 financial crisis, the Board and the Federal Reserve banks, along with other federal financial regulatory agencies, conducted stress tests of large, complex bank holding companies through the Supervisory Capital Assessment Program (SCAP). The SCAP was a forward-looking exercise designed to estimate revenue, losses, and capital needs under an adverse economic and financial market scenario. By looking at the broad capital needs of the financial system and the specific needs of individual companies, these stress tests provided valuable information to market participants, reduced uncertainty about the financial condition of the participating bank holding companies under a scenario that was more adverse than that which was anticipated to occur at the time, and had an overall stabilizing effect.

Building on the SCAP and other supervisory work coming out of the crisis, the Board initiated the annual Comprehensive Capital Analysis and Review (CCAR) in late 2010 to assess the capital adequacy and the internal capital planning processes of the same large, complex bank holding companies
