

APBRs, and thereby reduce the societal costs of the resulting injuries and deaths. CPSC assumes that the number of firms and APBR models in use will tend to be stable in future years around the values in 2022: 12 firms and 65 models. The market for APBRs is expected to grow at an average rate of 2.01 percent between 2024 and 2053 as a result of an aging U.S. population. Assuming the rates of incidents per million APBRs stays constant, an industry of this size would result in an average of 32 deaths from entrapment per year. At a value of a statistical life (VSL) of $10.5 million (2021 dollars), the annualized present value of the potential societal costs of the proposed rule therefore is $298.11 million.

(2) The requirements of the proposed rule, with modifications, are expected to address 92 percent of deaths caused by entrapment and produce estimated benefits of $266.99 million. Benefits were assessed under three more conservative scenarios derived from this baseline efficacy, estimating benefits at: 75 percent, 50 percent, and 25 percent of their potential value. Even under the most conservative assumption that only one quarter, or 25 percent of the potential benefits are achieved, the net benefits greatly exceed the costs of the rule. The annualized benefits of the proposed rule are estimated as follows: at 75 percent—$200.24 million, 50 percent—$133.49 million, and 25 percent—$66.75 million, respectively. The estimated annualized costs associated with the proposed requirements to prevent APBR hazards is $2.01 million. This results in net quantifiable net benefits of $198.23 million, $131.48 million, and $64.74 million on an annualized basis. On a per product basis, the benefits of the proposed rule are estimated between $331.78 per APBR (75%), $221.19 (50%), and $110.59 per APBR (25%), and the costs are $3.34 per APBR. All these amounts are in 2021 dollars using a discount rate of 3 percent.

(3) Injuries from entrapment and other hazards on APBRs are not included in the benefit-cost assessment because for many incidents involving injuries, there is not sufficient information to determine whether they would fall under the scope of this proposed rule. However, the injuries are quantified in a sensitivity analysis as a potential upper limit to assess the benefits of this proposed rule. The sensitivity analysis used NEISS incidents and the Injury Cost Model (ICM) to extrapolate and generate national estimates for injuries from entrapment treated in an ED or other settings. The ICM calculated that the aggregate number of nonfatal injuries in the United States from entrapment from 2010 to 2019 was 125,121. Staff estimated that from the total of these injuries, 79,563 were treated in an outpatient setting (e.g., doctor's office or clinic), 39,149 resulted in ED treatment, and 6,409 resulted in hospital admissions.

(j) Least-Burdensome Requirement that Would Adequately Reduce the Risk of Injury. The Commission considered six alternatives to the proposed rule including:

- (i) Take no regulatory action;
- (ii) Conduct a recall of APBRs instead of promulgating a final rule;
- (iii) Conduct an educational campaign;
- (iv) Ban APBRs from the market entirely;
- (v) Require enhanced safety warnings; and
- (vi) Longer effective date.

(4) Although most of these alternatives may be a less burdensome alternative to the proposed rule, the Commission determines preliminarily that none of the less burdensome alternatives would adequately reduce the risk of deaths and injuries associated with APBRs that is addressed in the proposed rule.

Secretary, Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Section 105 of the Federal Alcohol Administration Act (FAA Act) prohibits producers, wholesalers, and importers of distilled spirits, wine, or malt beverages (i.e., industry members) from engaging in certain practices (collectively referred to as “trade practices”) that threaten the independence of retailers and/or give the industry members an unfair advantage over their competitors. See 27 U.S.C. 205. Apart from labeling and advertising (27 U.S.C. 205(e) & (f)), which are outside the scope of this document, section 105’s prohibited trade practices are:

A. Exclusive outlet. It is unlawful for any industry member to require, by agreement or otherwise, that any retailer purchase alcohol beverages from the industry member to the exclusion, in whole or in part, of alcohol beverages sold or offered for sale by other persons. See 27 U.S.C. 205(a).

B. Tied house. It is unlawful for any industry member to induce any retailer to purchase alcohol beverages from the industry member to the exclusion, in whole or in part, of alcohol beverages sold or offered for sale by others, through any of the following means: (1) by acquiring or holding any interest in any license with respect to the premises of the retailer; (2) by acquiring any interest in the real or personal property owned, occupied, or used by the retailer in the conduct of its business; (3) by furnishing, giving, renting, lending, or selling to the retailer, any equipment, fixtures, signs, supplies, money, services or other thing of value, subject to exceptions prescribed by regulations; (4) by paying or crediting the retailer for any advertising, display, or distribution service; (5) by guaranteeing any loan or the repayment of any financial obligation of the retailer; (6) by extending to the retailer credit for a period in excess of the credit period usual and customary to the industry for the particular class of transactions as prescribed by regulations; or (7) by requiring the retailer to take and dispose of a certain quota of any alcohol beverages. See 27 U.S.C. 205(b).

C. Commercial bribery. It is unlawful for any industry member to induce any retailer or wholesaler to purchase alcohol beverages from the industry member to the exclusion, in whole or in part, of alcohol beverages sold or offered for sale by others, though the following means: (1) by commercial bribery; or (2) by offering or giving any bonus, premium, or compensation to any officer, employee, or representative of the retailer or wholesaler. See 27 U.S.C. 205(c).

D. Consignment sales. It is unlawful for any industry member to sell, offer for sale, or contract to sell alcohol beverages to any retailer or wholesaler, or for any retailer or wholesaler to purchase, offer to purchase, or contract to purchase any alcohol beverages on consignment or under conditional sale or with the privilege of return or on any basis otherwise than a bona fide sale, or where any part of such transaction involves, directly or indirectly, the acquisition by such person, from the retailer or wholesaler, of other distilled
