

the Commission believes that it is important to clearly establish the minimum price variation for Mini Options prior to the anticipated commencement of trading on March 18, 2013.

Commenters offer strong support for the Exchanges' proposals.¹⁶ In their letters, SIFMA and LiquidPoint state that they strongly agree with CBOE's request to mimic the pricing convention of standard options with mini-option contract pricing and note that they believe it is appropriate to allow penny-pricing for Mini Options on securities for which standard options already trade in pennies, specifically SPY, AAPL, GLD, and AMZN.¹⁷

In its letter, SIFMA notes that given the significant liquidity in the market for the standard options on SPY, AAPL, GLD, GOOG, and AMZN, "investor confusion could be profound if the standard and mini-options are not aligned with respect to the minimum price variation."¹⁸ LiquidPoint also expressed similar concern in its letter.¹⁹ Further, in its letter, TD Ameritrade states that "[i]nvestor confusion would invariably result if Mini Options did not retain the important characteristics, such as the trading increments," of the standard options on the same underlying security.²⁰ The Commission believes that allowing the same minimum price variation for Mini Options as standard options on the same underlying security should help prevent investor confusion.

the current proposals are limited to the five approved Mini Options, and the Exchanges must submit subsequent proposed rule changes to extend such treatment of minimum price variations to new Mini Options. See CBOE Notice, supra note 3, at n.7.

¹⁶ See SIFMA Letter, supra note 4; LiquidPoint Letter, supra note 4; and TD Ameritrade Letter, supra note 7. In his comment letter, Sheedy suggested that Mini Options should not be settled by using a portion of a standard option such that a standard option would be "split," resulting in a fractional ownership of a standard option. Sheedy also opined that the option symbols designating each type of option should be distinct and easily identifiable in order to minimize inadvertent mistakes in rapidly changing markets. See Sheedy Letter, supra note 4. In its response letter, CBOE notes that the deliverable security for standard options will not be used to settle Mini Options on the same underlying security. See CBOE Response Letter, supra note 5, at 1–2. CBOE also reiterates that Mini Options will be designated with different trading symbols than standard options on the same underlying security. See id., at 2. Further, CBOE notes that the industry-wide symbology for Mini Options will be the use of the same symbol that currently exists for standard options on the same underlying security, followed by "7." See id.

¹⁷ See SIFMA Letter, supra note 4, at 1–2 and LiquidPoint Letter, supra note 4, at 1.

¹⁸ See SIFMA Letter, supra note 4, at 2.

¹⁹ See LiquidPoint Letter, supra note 4, at 2.

²⁰ See TD Ameritrade Letter, supra note 7, at 1.

Maintaining consistency between Mini Options and standard options as to the minimum price variation may also provide additional market benefits. In this regard, the Commission notes that, in its proposal, CBOE states its belief that matched pricing for Mini Options and standard options on the same underlying security would attract additional liquidity providers who would make markets in these options and that the ability to quote Mini Options and standard options on the same underlying security in the same minimum increments would hopefully result in more efficient pricing via arbitrage and possible price improvement in both contracts on the same underlying security.²¹ SIFMA and LiquidPoint also note that penny pricing for Mini Options "would benefit anticipated users by providing additional price points, particularly as the product is intended to be an investment tool with more affordable and realistic prices for the average retail investor."²² Further, TD Ameritrade states that the proposal will allow market makers to "provide better fills to investors by quoting and trading within a lesser spread than the existing Rule 710 allows."²³

The Commission notes that the proposed minimum price variation treatment is also consistent with the current operation of member firms' systems. Specifically, in its proposal, CBOE states that it has polled its member firms with customers who would be potential users of Mini Options, and these firms have indicated a preference that the premium pricing for Mini Options match what is currently permitted for standard options on the same underlying securities.²⁴ CBOE states that its firms' systems are configured using the "root symbol" of an underlying security and cannot differentiate, for purposes of minimum price variations, between contracts on the same underlying security.²⁵ In its letter, SIFMA also notes that its members' systems are programmed using "root symbols," and would not be able to assign different minimum price variations to Mini Options and standard options on the same underlying security.²⁶ Further, LiquidPoint notes that its systems are programmed such that it would be difficult and confusing to systems users to assign different minimum price variations to Mini Options and standard options on the same underlying security.²⁷

Lastly, the Commission notes that, with respect to the impact of the proposals on the Exchanges' systems capacity, each of the Exchanges represents that it and the Options Price Reporting Authority have the necessary systems capacity to handle the potential additional traffic associated with this proposal.²⁸ The Exchanges state that they do not believe that the increased traffic will become unmanageable because Mini Options are limited to a fixed number of underlying securities.²⁹

Accordingly, for the reasons stated above, and in consideration of the anticipated Mini Options launch date of March 18, 2013, the Commission finds good cause, pursuant to Section 19(b)(2) of the Act,³⁰ for approving the Exchanges' proposals prior to the 30th day after the publication of the notices in the Federal Register.

IV. Conclusion

It is therefore ordered, pursuant to Section 19(b)(2) of the Act,³¹ that the proposed rule changes (SR-CBOE-2013-016; SR-ISE-2013-08), be, and hereby are, approved on an accelerated basis.

For the Commission, by the Division of Trading and Markets, pursuant to delegated authority.³²

Deputy Secretary.

Major Issues Raised by Vietnam

In its January 17, 2013 panel request, Vietnam makes a number of allegations relating to certain antidumping administrative reviews and a sunset review conducted by the Department of Commerce on certain frozen warmwater shrimp from Vietnam. Specifically, Vietnam challenges: the imposition of antidumping duties and cash deposit requirements pursuant to the final results of the fourth administrative review for the period from February 1, 2008, to January 31, 2009, in Certain Frozen Warmwater Shrimp From the Socialist Republic of Vietnam: Final
