Current Actions: Over its history, the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) has invested in a wide range of projects supporting research and practice in early childhood education through grant making and special initiatives. This project builds off the Boston Children's Museum's (BCM) and IMLS's previous work in piloting School Readiness Project in South Carolina and Virginia by scaling it into Iowa, Mississippi, and New Mexico. It addresses persistent gaps in early childhood education and school readiness and aims to amplify the strength of organizations serving children and families by forming networks between and across these organizations. The purpose of this data collection effort is to obtain a holistic view of the museum target audience and needs for capacity building support, identify potential gaps in the suite of current offerings, and define both opportunities and partnerships for new and expanded offerings.

This action is to seek approval for the information collection for the Building a National Network of Museums and Libraries for School Readiness Project for the next three years.
