

proposal. The agencies decided to revise the definition of "federal funds transactions." As revised, federal funds sold and purchased would be limited to transactions in domestic offices only and would not include:

- any securities resale/repurchase agreements,
 - overnight Federal Home Loan Bank advances, or
 - lending and borrowing transactions in foreign offices involving immediately available funds with an original maturity of one business day or under a continuing contract.
- Lending and borrowing transactions in foreign offices involving immediately available funds with an original maturity of one business day or under a continuing contract that are not securities resale/repurchase agreements will begin to be reported in "Loans and leases, net of unearned income" and "Other borrowed money," respectively. The Federal Reserve decided to adopt the same modifications for the FR Y-9C.

Regulatory Capital

On November 29, 2001, the agencies published a final rule revising the regulatory capital treatment of recourse arrangements and direct credit substitutes, including residual interests and credit-enhancing interest-only strips, as well as asset-backed and mortgage-backed securities (66 FR 59613). This final rule took effect on January 1, 2002. Any transactions settled on or after that date are subject to the rule. However, for transactions settled before January 1, 2002, that result in increased capital requirements under the final rule, banks may delay the application of the final rule to those transactions until December 31, 2002. In response to this final rule and comparable changes on the commercial bank Call Reports, the Federal Reserve is revising the instructions for reporting these types of exposures in Schedule HC-R, Regulatory Capital, so that the capital calculations in this schedule are consistent with the amended regulatory capital standards.
