

intercompany ownership and percentage of ownership of voting equity, nonvoting equity, or other interests. This change is needed to ensure that the Federal Reserve receives sufficient information to be able to verify reporters' compliance with the requirements of section 211.23(f)(5) of Regulation K (12 CFR 211.23(f)(5)). Four commenters expressed concern with regard to the increased burden in obtaining and reporting this level of detail from these types of companies.

The Federal Reserve acknowledges that the proposal would increase the filing burden of reporters. However, any burden should be minimal inasmuch as reporters are required to maintain the requested information for internal compliance purposes. This nominal increase in burden is outweighed by the Federal Reserve's need for the requested information.

Upon review of this proposal, the Federal Reserve identified areas in which the proposed language of Report Item 2b could be improved. These improvements will be reflected in the report.

Comments Not Related to the Proposed Changes

Certain Interests Not Reportable Under Report Item 2b

Since the FR Y-7 was last amended, counsel for one FBO asked whether foreign banks need to monitor holdings in dealing accounts at their foreign broker-dealers to determine whether those holdings comply with section 211.23(f)(5) of Regulation K. The commenter noted that foreign banks appear to be taking different approaches in this regard.

Under a 1971 Board interpretation (12 CFR 225.124(d)), a foreign bank holding company may underwrite or deal in shares of stock (including shares of United States issuers) to be distributed outside the United States, provided that shares so acquired are disposed of within a reasonable time (essentially, no longer than one year). Shares held pursuant to this interpretation need not be reported on report item 2b, provided that the holding of the shares is in all respects consistent with the interpretation. The FR Y-7 instructions will be clarified using language from the 1971 Board interpretation.

Special Purpose Vehicles

Three commenters requested a broader exemption for the reporting of special purpose vehicles (SPVs). The current exemption only applies to leasing SPVs.

The Federal Reserve will continue to collect information on SPVs and will investigate whether a broader exemption might be practical or warranted in relation to the Federal Reserve's supervisory needs.

FR Y-7Q Confidentiality

One commenter asked the Federal Reserve to extend the period of time following filing during which the FR Y-7Q reports are automatically granted confidential status. The current timeframe for not releasing the FR Y-7Q reports to the public is 120 days from the report date. The commenter requested that the timeframe be extended to 180 days.

In considering this comment, the Federal Reserve believes that transparency and disclosure are important and justify the current FR Y-7Q policy and timeframe. As noted by the commenter, extensions of confidentiality are reviewed on a case-by-case basis and determined based on the merits of the argument presented for requesting confidential treatment.

Future FR Y-7 Revisions

One commenter requested that the Federal Reserve consider improvements to the process for amending the FR Y-7 and reduce the frequency with which changes are made to the form.

As mandated by the Paperwork Reduction Act, the Federal Reserve must review its information collections a minimum of every three years. However, changes in accounting practices, regulations, and industry practices often necessitate making revisions to reports on a more frequent basis.
