

The FAA concurs with the commenter's request. We have revised paragraph 5.a.(2)(c) of the final AC to state: "Category C: A temporary (time-limited) repair that will need to be reworked or replaced prior to an established time * * *"

Airplane Cycle Age Equal to or Less Than Implementation Time on Effective Date of Rule

One commenter requests that the FAA clarify the guidance on when the assessment process would begin for airplanes whose flight cycle age is equal to or less than the implementation time on the date the associated final rule becomes effective. Specifically, the commenter points out that the deadline for repair assessment does not include a "not to exceed" value like the other airplanes addressed in the proposed AC.

The FAA concurs that clarification is necessary. We have changed paragraph 6.g.(1) of the final AC to state that the assessment of an airplane in this group should take place before it exceeds the design service goal (DSG), plus an equivalent C-check. (This is parallel to the limit of the assessment deadline specified in paragraph 6.g.(2) for airplanes whose cycle age is greater than the implementation time, but less than the DSG, on the date that the associated final rule became effective.)

Maintenance Program Changes

One commenter requests that the FAA revise the proposed AC to make its intent clearer concerning maintenance program changes. The proposed wording states: "If the interval escalation reduces the frequency of inspection of the affected area below the BZI * * *".

The commenter considers that this wording is confusing, and suggests that it could be clearer if changed to: "If the revised maintenance or inspection program intervals are greater than those in the BZI * * *".

The FAA concurs. We have changed the wording in paragraph 6.h. of the final AC accordingly.

Sale and Transfer of Airplanes

One commenter requests changes concerning the time for implementing the required repair assessment for airplanes that previously have been operated under an FAA-approved maintenance program and are now being sold or transferred. The commenter requests that the phrase, "* * * whichever would result in an earlier accomplishment date for the assessment," be eliminated. The commenter states:

- Such a requirement to adopt previous operators' programs into the new operator's FAA-approved program adds needless administrative complexity and confusion.

- The FAA applies specific oversight of maintenance program integration for fleet additions, whether by acquisition of new or used aircraft of by lease.

- Ample FAA guidelines cover the integration of airplanes transitioning from one maintenance program to another, and there is no need to add an across-the-board provision which may not be appropriate in many cases.

The FAA does not concur. We consider it essential that operators ensure that transferred airplanes are maintained in accordance with the repair assessment program on the same basis as if there were continuity in ownership. Scheduling of the repair assessments for each airplane must not be delayed or postponed because of a transfer of ownership; in some cases, such postponement could continue indefinitely if an airplane is transferred frequently from one owner to another. The stipulation contained in the AC is intended to prevent the situation where an airplane is transferred so often that it never gets assessed.

Miscellaneous Changes

Title of AC: We changed the title of the final AC to "Damage Tolerance Assessment of Repairs to Pressurized Fuselages." We consider that this new title more clearly reflects the content of the AC and the guidance provided.

Paragraph 3., Discussion: We revised this paragraph in the final AC provide a comprehensive list of all airplane models that are subject to the requirements of 14 CFR parts 91, 121, 125, and 129 for a structural integrity assessment of repairs to the fuselage pressure boundary.

Paragraph 6.j., Operation of Leased Foreign-Owned Airplanes: We revised this paragraph to point out that the applicant is not required to implement the assessment program only in accordance with the "model-specific manufacturer's repair assessment guidelines." We deleted the word "manufacturer's" from that phrase in the final AC. The applicant may use the manufacturer's guidelines or may use any others that have been developed and approved for the specific airplane model.
