II. Discussion

As directed in SRM-SECY-11-0089, "Options for Proceeding with Future Level 3 Probabilistic Risk Assessment (PRA) Activities," the staff is conducting a full-scope multi-unit site Level 3 PRA (Level 3 PRA project) that addresses all internal and external hazards; all plant operating modes; and all reactor units, spent fuel pools (SFPs), and dry cask storage. The reference site for this study contains 2 four-loop Westinghouse pressurized water reactors with large dry containment. The objectives of the Level 3 PRA project are to (1) develop a Level 3 PRA, generally based on current state-of-practice methods, tools, and data, that (a) reflects technical advances since the last NRC-sponsored Level 3 PRAs (NUREG-1150), which were completed over 30 years ago, and (b) addresses scope considerations that were not previously considered (e.g., low-power and shutdown risk, multi-unit risk, other radiological sources); (2) extract new insights to enhance regulatory decision making and to help focus limited NRC resources on issues most directly related to the agency's mission to protect public health and safety; (3) enhance PRA staff capability and expertise and improve documentation practices to make PRA information more accessible, retrievable, and understandable; and (4) demonstrate technical feasibility and evaluate the realistic cost of developing new Level 3 PRAs.

The work performed under this project is being documented as a multi-volume report. The current Level 3 PRA project report (Volume 8) describes the analyses and results for the integrated site risk (ISR) task. The Level 3 PRA project ISR task is a site-specific analysis that consists of the following high-level steps: sitewide dependency assessment; multi-unit (MU) Level 1, Level 2, and Level 3 PRA; and ISR analysis. Multi-unit core damage frequencies (MUCDFs) were developed for all identified multi-unit initiating events (MUIEs). The total MUCDF was approximately 10 percent of the total single-unit core damage frequency, with seismic events being the largest contributors to MU risk. Due to computational challenges, MU Level 2 and Level 3 analyses were limited to two MUIEs: weather-related losses of offsite power and a large seismic event. The study found that MU consequences for these MUIEs were small compared to the single-unit results. For the final ISR step, a single illustrative scenario was identified that involved potential sitewide dependencies between the reactors and the spent fuel pools and was risk-significant to both the spent fuel pools and the reactors: a large seismic event. Risk results for the illustrative ISR scenario are reported for several consequence metrics, including individual latent cancer fatality risk, collective total effective dose risk, and economic cost. Regardless of the consequence metric, the risk estimated for the illustrative ISR scenario was calculated to be low as compared to the MU and single-source (i.e., single-unit reactor or SFP) results.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Annual reporting to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS), the Employee Benefits Security Administration (EBSA), and the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation (PBGC) is required by law for most employee benefit plans. For example, section 4065 of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) requires annual reporting to PBGC for pension plans covered by title IV of ERISA. To accommodate these filing requirements, IRS, EBSA, and PBGC have jointly promulgated the Form 5500 Series, which includes the Form 5500 Annual Return/Report of Employee Benefit Plan and the Form 5500-SF Short Form Annual Return/Report of Small Employee Benefit Plan.

The collection of information has been approved by OMB under control number 1212-0057 through March 31, 2026. PBGC intends to request that OMB extend its approval, without modifications, for 3 years. An agency may not conduct or sponsor, and a person is not required to respond to a collection of information unless it displays a currently valid OMB control number.

PBGC estimates that it will receive approximately 25,000 Form 5500 and Form 5500-SF filings per year under this collection of information for the 2025 Form 5500 Series. PBGC further estimates that the total annual burden of this collection of information for the Form 5500 Series, attributable to PBGC, will be 15,089 hours and that there will be no cost burden.

PBGC is soliciting public comments to—

- evaluate whether the proposed collection of information is necessary for the proper performance of the functions of the agency, including whether the information will have practical utility;

- evaluate the accuracy of the agency's estimate of the burden of the proposed collection of information, including the validity of the methodologies and assumptions used;
