

organization's overarching policies and processes?

5. How much of your incident handling effort is spent on the different phases of the incident handling lifecycle (from NIST SP 800-61): (1) Preparation, (2) detection-and-analysis, (3) containment-eradication-and-recovery, (4) post-incident-activity.

6. What are the relevant international, sector-specific or de facto standards used or referenced by your organization to support incident handling and related information sharing activities?

7. How do you determine that an incident is in progress (or has happened)?

8. How do you determine that an incident has been handled and requires no further action?

9. How do you determine when to coordinate and/or share information with other organizations regarding an incident?

10. Do you have documented case studies or lessons learned to share (good or bad examples)? If so, please provide URLs or attachments with your response.

Organizational Capabilities and Considerations for Effective Incident Coordination

Incident handling teams and coordinating centers often collaborate at varying stages of the incident management lifecycle described by NIST SP 800-61. Within this context, individual organizations may offer specific capabilities and may have specific considerations related to effective incident coordination.

1. Do you maintain a list of key contacts for use during an incident? If so, are these contacts identified as individual people, or as positions?

2. What is the size of your organization (e.g. staff, contractors, members)? How many individuals are involved in incident coordination activities carried out by your organization?

3. Relative to the incident response lifecycle defined by NIST SP 800-61, what aspects of incident coordination occur within your organization?

4. What services and assistance (e.g. monitoring, analysis, information) does your organization provide to others both inside and outside your organization relating to incident coordination?

5. Does your organization have any method for understanding and describing the quality or sensitivity of different types of information shared by a third party? For each type of information, can you describe the method?

6. Approximately how many employees (please indicate full time or part time as appropriate) do you devote to incident response?

7. If possible, list examples of highly effective computer security incident response teams and comment on what made them successful.

8. Based on your personal or your organization's experience, what are the most and least effective communication mechanisms used (e.g., phone, email, etc.) when coordinating an incident, and why? In what order do you typically use specific communication mechanisms?

9. Do you have examples of alternate communication mechanisms used because an incident has degraded communications?

10. Do you hold regular incident review meetings? Between organizations? How frequently? If your team does not hold incident review meetings regularly, why not?

11. What skillsets (e.g., network sniffing, system administration, firewall configuration, reverse engineering, etc.) does your organization need most when an incident is in progress?

12. Are there incident handling and response skillsets that are specific to your industry or sector?

13. How do those skills relate to information sharing and communication before, during and after an incident?

Coordinated Handling of an Incident

1. Do you report incidents or indicators to US-CERT?

2. Do you coordinate incident response with organizations other than US-CERT?

3. Do you participate in an incident coordination community such as the Defense Industrial Base (DIB), the Defense Security Information Exchange (DSIE), or an Information Sharing and Analysis Center (ISAC)? What are the benefits? Are there any pain points?

4. How is information about threats and/or incidents shared among coordination community members?

5. How do you prioritize incidents?

6. How do regulatory requirements affect your organization's ability or willingness to share information or collaborate during an incident?

7. What regulatory bodies are you required to report information to regarding incidents? For each regulatory body, what kind of information does your organization report and what has been your organization's reporting experience?

Data Handling Considerations

1. What, if any, types of information would create risk or disadvantage if shared by your organization?

2. What kinds of information would you never share with a peer during incident handling?

3. What types of protections, redactions, or restrictions would aid your organization in sharing information?

4. Do you use specialized formats to communicate incident information?

5. What do you see as the pros and cons of specialized formats for representing and communicating incident information?

6. What incentives exist for your organization to share information with other organizations during an incident?

7. What disincentives exist that might prevent your organization from sharing information with other organizations during an incident?

8. If available, please provide an example when sharing with other organizations proved to have negative implications for your organization's incident response.

Specific Industry Practices

In addition to the approaches above, NIST is interested in identifying core practices that are broadly applicable across sectors and throughout industry.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: On February 28, 2013, notice was published in the Federal Register (78 FR 13642) that a request for a scientific research permit to take green, loggerhead, hawksbill, Kemp's ridley, and leatherback sea turtles had been submitted by the above-named individual. The requested permit has been issued under the authority of the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended (ESA; 16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq.) and the regulations governing the taking, importing, and exporting of endangered and threatened species (50 CFR parts 222-226).

Ms. Holloway-Adkins has been issued a 5-year research permit to continue to characterize the population of sea turtles that utilize the nearshore hard bottom reefs in Brevard County, FL. Green and loggerhead sea turtles would be captured, flipper and passive integrated transponder tagged, measured, weighed, tissue and blood sampled and photographed before release. A subset of green sea turtles may be stomach lavaged or have an acoustic transmitter attached to the carapace for tracking movements. Researchers are also authorized to count all sea turtle species during vessel surveys in the nearshore waters of Florida and Georgia.

Issuance of this permit, as required by the ESA, was based on a finding that such permit (1) Was applied for in good faith, (2) will not operate to the disadvantage of such endangered or threatened species, and (3) is consistent with the purposes and policies set forth in section 2 of the ESA.
