Regulatory Flexibility Act

In accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96-354, as amended by Pub. L. 104-121), the Department has reviewed this regulation, and by approving it, certifies under 5 U.S.C. 605(b) that this regulation will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. The Department's debt collection activities do not affect a substantial number of small entities. Moreover, as found by the Department of the Treasury, wage garnishment requirements do not have a significant economic impact on small entities. Employers of delinquent debtors must certify certain information about the debtor, such as the debtor's employment status and earnings. This information is contained in the employer's payroll records. Therefore, it will not take a significant amount of time or result in a significant cost for an employer to complete the certification form. Even if an employer is served with withholding orders on several employees over the course of a year, the cost imposed on the employer to complete the certification would not have a significant economic impact on that entity. Employers are not required to vary their normal pay cycles in order to comply with a withholding order issued under this rule. For these reasons, a regulatory flexibility analysis is not required.

Executive Order 12866

This rule is not a significant regulatory action as defined in Executive Order 12866 and is therefore not subject to review by the Office of Management and Budget.

Paperwork Reduction Act

This regulation contains no information collection requirements subject to review by the Office of Management and Budget under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980 (44 U.S.C. Chapter 35).
