AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, HUD.

ACTION: Notice.

SUMMARY: Section 403 of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996 (referred to as the "Welfare Reform Act") places restrictions on providing "Federal means-tested public benefits" to certain legal aliens. DATES: Effective Date: This notice is effective upon publication.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

On August 22, 1996, the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996 (Pub. L. 104-193, 110 Stat. 2105) (referred to as the "Welfare Reform Act") was enacted into law. Section 403 of the Welfare Reform Act imposes restrictions on providing "Federal means-tested public benefits" to certain legal aliens. Specifically, unless statutorily excepted, an alien who is a "qualified alien," as that term is defined in section 431 of the Welfare Reform Act, and who enters the United States on or after August 22, 1996 is ineligible for "Federal means-tested public benefits" for the first five years after the qualified alien's entry. Following a thorough review of the legislative history, HUD has concluded that "Federal means-tested public benefits" refers not to discretionary spending programs but only to mandatory spending programs in which eligibility for benefits, or the amount of such benefits, or both, are determined on the basis of income, resources, or financial need of the individual, household, or family unit.

This conclusion is consistent with that reached by other agencies that administer Federal public benefit programs. (Please see the notices published by the Department of Health and Human Services and the Social Security Administration in the Federal Register on August 26, 1997, at 62 FR 45256 and 62 FR 45284, respectively, and the notice published by the Department of Agriculture on July 7, 1998 at 63 FR 36653.) HUD has no mandatory spending programs. Accordingly, no HUD programs fall within the category of "Federal means-tested public benefits."

Another section of the Welfare Reform Act that might appear to apply to HUD programs is section 421, which provides that income and resources of an alien sponsored under section 213A of the Immigration and Nationality Act applying for "Federal means-tested public benefits" are deemed to include the income and resources of the individual's sponsor. That section is only applicable to programs covered by section 403 of the Act. Hence, its provisions are inapplicable to HUD programs.
