SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: On January 20, 2025, President Trump issued the “Regulatory Freeze Pending Review” memorandum published in the Federal Register on January 25, 2025 (90 FR 8249). This Presidential action ordered all executive departments and agencies to consider postponing for 60 days the effective date of certain rules published in the Federal Register for the purpose of reviewing any questions of fact, law, and policy that the rules may raise. Additionally, executive departments and agencies were to consider opening a comment period to allow interested parties to provide comments about issues of fact, law, and policy raised by the rules postponed under the memorandum.

Consistent with the Presidential Memorandum of January 20, 2025, the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) temporarily postponed the effective date of its final rule amending the test procedures for central air conditioners and heat pumps (CAC/HP) published in the Federal Register on January 7, 2025 (90 FR 1224), to March 21, 2025. 90 FR 9001 (Feb. 5, 2025). DOE also requested comments on the impacts of a further delay of the test procedures as well as legal, factual, or policy issues raised by the rule.

DOE received comments in response to the February 2025 delay of effective date from the interested parties listed in Table 1.

Several commenters, including CAC/HP manufacturers, stated that DOE should not delay the effective date of test procedure.<sup>2</sup> Specifically, these commenters note that the test procedures incorporate latest industry standards, which were developed by a broad group of stakeholders. Additionally, these commenters assert that the test procedure is reasonable designed to measure energy efficiency without being unduly burdensome to conduct.

However, other commenters, also including CAC/HP manufacturers, supported delaying the effective date of the test procedure or delaying in the enforcement of a specific aspect of the test procedure, the controls verification procedure (CVP). These commenters note that the CVP is new and that manufacturers need additional time to determine whether the tests are accurate and repeatable, as well as not unduly burdensome to conduct. (JCI, Doc. No. 52 at 1–2; Bosch, Doc. No. 51 at 2; LG, Doc. No. 54 at 1) AHRI, the organization behind the industry standard that introduced the CVP, recommends DOE to defer the effective date of the CVP enforcement provisions until after finalized tolerances have been supported by test data. (AHRI, Doc. No. 48 at 2) AHRI reports that it is currently analyzing CVP test data collected by third-party test laboratories and will work to collect additional data during the 2025 certification year. AHRI and others recommend that DOE defer enforcing the CVP provisions until after this analysis is complete (estimated to be July 2026). (Id.; Bosch, Doc. No. 51 at 2; Daikin, Doc. No. 57 at 3; Rheem, Doc. No. 53 at 2) In the alternative, commenters suggested that DOE exercise enforcement discretion to delay the CVP enforcement provisions. (Daikin, Doc No. 57 at 2; GE, Doc. No. 50 at 3)

In addition to concerns related to the consistency and repeatability of the CVP test, commenters also expressed concern related to the potential regulatory burden. Specifically, Daikin stated that, after it tested several models, it determined that CVP will require re-design of some existing products. (Daikin, Doc No. 57. at 4) Daikin also asserted that the cost of conducting CVP tests is a heavy burden on manufacturers. (Id.; see JCI, Doc. No. 52 at 2; Mitsubishi, Doc. No. 47 at 2)

On March 20, 2025, DOE noted that it was in the process of reviewing these comments and, as such, and consistent with the Presidential memorandum of January 20, 2025, DOE further delayed the effective date of this rule another 60 days to May 20, 2025. 90 FR 13052 (Mar. 20, 2025). DOE continues to review comments related to the accuracy and burden of the test procedure. As such, and consistent with the Presidential memorandum of January 20, 2025, DOE further delays the effective date of this rule until July 7, 2025.

To the extent that 5 U.S.C. 553 applies to this action, it is exempt from notice and comment because it constitutes a rule of procedure under 5 U.S.C. 553(b)(A) and for which no notice of hearing is required by statute. Further, the delay of the effective date to July 7, 2025, does not affect the compliance date for this rule, which remains July 7, 2025. As such, this action is not a “substantive rule” for which a 30-day delay in effective date is required under 5 U.S.C. 553(d).
