BILLING CODE 4410-BA-P

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

National Institute of Corrections

Solicitation for a Cooperative Agreement—"A Guide to Preparing for and Managing Prison Emergencies"

AGENCY: National Institute of Corrections, Department of Justice.

ACTION: Solicitation for a cooperative agreement.

SUMMARY: The Department of Justice (DOJ), National Institute of Corrections (NIC), announces the availability of funds in FY 2002 for a cooperative agreement to fund the project "A Guide to Preparing for and Managing Prison Emergencies". NIC will award a one year cooperative agreement to develop a document which will assist correctional agencies in assessing and managing prisons during emergencies, including prison disturbances, work actions and natural and environmental disasters.

A cooperative agreement is a form of assistance relationship where the National Institute of Corrections is substantially involved during the performance of the award. An award will be made to an organization that will produce a document that can be distributed to state correctional agencies to use in the assessment and management of emergencies that would include but not be limited to managing natural and environmental disasters, riots, work stoppages, and other disturbances that may impact on normal operation of an institution and possibly the correctional system.

Background

The National Institute of Corrections has offered special interest seminars, "Managing Prisons During Natural and Environmental Disasters" and "Emergency Preparedness Assessment" over the last several years. Many agencies have taken numerous ideas back to their home agencies to implement during these challenging situations. The manuals used in the seminars are available to the field; however, a compilation of the materials into one document would be of benefit to practitioners as a centralized resource for an internal assessment of these issues and discussion of strategies for effective management in these situations.

Numerous changes in the correctional environment, such as budget reductions, changes in the characteristics of the workforce and changes in the demographics and characteristics of the inmate population, have created an even more pronounced need for assessing the current policies and procedures that systems have in place for managing emergencies.

Since the September 11 terrorist attacks, the need to effectively manage prisons during emergencies has taken on new urgency and a set of incidents previously not dealt with in the institutional setting. One example is a correctional system that was faced with a major rumor in the inmate population throughout the state that in the case of terrorist attacks, inmates would be considered a dispensable population and would be the last to receive assistance and their demise was likely. The same fears that have raised concern in the general public are multiplied in the prison setting when it comes to the distribution of resources during times of emergency coupled with the divided focus of staff due to their concern over the welfare of their families in these tense situations.

It is the goal of the Prisons Division to provide the most current information available to correctional managers in a practical and user-friendly format.

Purpose

To provide a Guide to assist correctional agencies in managing various emergencies and to make information regarding strategies which have proven successful available to all correctional agencies. To provide an assessment tool by which a correctional agency can assess their readiness to handle any emergency.

Scope of Work

The awardee will research the NIC training materials and other sources of information regarding emergencies and obtain specific information from various adult state and federal correctional agencies to complete the following tasks:

1. Update the assessment tool used in previous NIC programs as an example, not a model, of a comprehensive tool for assessing a correctional agency's preparedness for emergencies. Examples of assessment instruments from other correctional systems should also be considered and included in the Guide if awardee thinks advisable.

2. Provide a comprehensive list of the range of issues that a correctional agency should address in their emergency plans. Provide sample policies and procedures and examples of Memorandums of Understanding and other mutual aid documents that readers could use to improve their own Emergency Plans.

3. Develop an assessment protocol that systems can use in preparing for natural and environmental disasters and emergencies.

4. Identify emergencies which have occurred in all of the following areas: riots, disturbances, staff strikes, infectious disease contaminations, inmate work stoppages and hunger strikes, floods, ice storms, hurricanes, tornadoes, chemical spills, and other emergencies possibly not identified.

5. Provide a synopsis of one or more emergency situations in each category described above which occurred in an adult prison setting and describe how they were managed; provide information available from After—Action reports; and provide a detailed discussion of the "Lessons Learned" by the DOC that might help other systems.

6. Identify technology that could assist correctional agencies in preparing for emergency situations, such as simulation systems, communication systems for coordinating with external agencies, etc. This does not include basic radio or telephone systems, weaponry, chemical agents, etc. that are utilized in daily operations. The intent of this task is to identify technologies, especially newer technologies, which could assist agencies in preparing for and managing emergencies, but is not intended to occupy a major focus in the award.

Specific Requirements

1. The applicant must propose a project team which includes a person(s) with emergency preparedness expertise and correctional management and operations experience. Documentation of the principal's and all team members relevant knowledge, skills, and abilities to carry out the described tasks must be included in the application.

2. The person designated as project director needs to be the person who will manage the project on a day-to-day basis and who has full decision-making authority to work with the NIC project manager. This person must have enough time dedicated to the project to assure they are available to direct the day-to-day activities of the project and to be available for collaboration with the NIC project manager.

3. Applicants should identify in the proposal specific strategies for assuring a collaborative effort between their project team and NIC.

Application Requirements

Objectives should be clear, measurable, attainable, and focused on the methods used to conduct the project. Applicants should provide an implementation plan for the project and include a schedule which will demonstrate milestones for significant tasks in chart form. The project must be completed within one year of its start date.
