An agency may not conduct or sponsor a collection of information unless it displays a currently valid control number. No person shall be subject to any penalty for failing to comply with a collection of information subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act (PRA) that does not display a valid control number. Comments are requested concerning (a) whether the proposed collection of information is necessary for the proper performance of the functions of the Commission, including whether the information shall have practical utility; (b) the accuracy of the Commission's burden estimate; (c) ways to enhance the quality, utility, and clarity of the information collected; and (d) ways to minimize the burden of the collection of information on the respondents, including the use of automated collection techniques or other forms of information technology.

The approval expires on June 30, 2002. Therefore, the Commission now resubmits this information collection, with no change, to the Office of Management and Budget for the regular three-year approval. The Commission requires certain carriers to file various transition reports. Those affected carriers are only: (1) Those operating in counties where there is no 911 service; (2) those operating in counties that are in the process of implementing 911; or (3) those operating in counties that have basic 911 service only in some parts as summarized by the National Emergency Number Association (NENA) in its Report Card to the Nation (Congressional Summary, 2001), and more specifically identified in the list NENA has submitted at the Commission's request. In addition, in March 2002, the Commission issued a Public Notice in which it offered a suggested template or sample as an optional guide to completing these reports. The coordination requirements will help to minimize the chances of confusion between all concerned parties and will improve the chances of a smooth, speedy transition to 911 service.
