

(PFMP) to consider a limited entry program for the Hawaii offshore commercial pelagic fishery employing handlines and related hook and line gear (e.g. shortlines, vertical longline) off or around seamounts, NOAA weather buoys, and private fish aggregating devices (PFADs). Council concern about the offshore handline fishery dates back to the early 1990s, due to the high catch of juvenile bigeye tuna from this fishery, and its rapid expansion where catches reached in excess of 1 million pounds in 1995. In response, the Council established a control date of July 22, 1992, for the Cross Seamount and NOAA weather buoy offshore handline fishery and informed the public that participants entering the fishery after this date might not be assured of continued participation. More recently, the Council established a general control date of June 2, 2005 for all Hawaii non-longline commercial pelagic fisheries in response to the overfishing condition of Pacific bigeye tuna. The offshore handline fishery has declined since 1995, with landings averaging 450,000 lbs annually. However, the Council continues to be concerned about this fishery due to the potential for fishery expansion if the economy in Hawaii goes into a recession, or reduced bigeye quotas for U.S. longline vessels are implemented based on conservation measures from Pacific tuna regional fishery management organizations (RFMOs) of which the U.S. is a member. Recent studies conducted on handline fisheries suggest a link between fishery participation and unemployment in Hawaii, while bigeye tuna continues to be in an overfishing condition in the Pacific and cuts of up to 25% of longline bigeye catch quotas are being considered by Pacific tuna RFMOs. In establishing a limited entry program, the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act requires Councils to consider, among other things, present and historical fishery participation, fishery economics, and cultural and social issues relevant to the fishery and fishing communities. These meetings will be an opportunity for fishery participants and the public to comment on the proposed limited entry program for the offshore handline fishery and on the issues listed above or other relevant considerations.

Although non-emergency issues not contained in this agenda may come before this group for discussion, those issues may not be the subject of formal action during these meetings. Action will be restricted to those issues specifically identified in this notice and any issues arising after publication of this notice that require emergency action under section 305(c) of the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act, provided the public has been notified of the Council's intent to take final action to address the emergency.
