IV. What Action is EPA Taking in this Notice?

EPA is making available for public viewing the revised risk assessments and related documents for one organophosphate, diazinon. These documents have been developed as part of the pilot public participation process that EPA and USDA are now using for involving the public in the reassessment of pesticide tolerances under the Food Quality Protection Act (FQPA), and the reregistration of individual organophosphate pesticides under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA). The pilot public participation process was developed as part of the EPA-USDA Tolerance Reassessment Advisory Committee (TRAC), which was established in April 1998, as a subcommittee under the auspices of EPA's National Advisory Council for Environmental Policy and Technology. A goal of the pilot public participation process is to find a more effective way for the public to participate at critical junctures in the Agency's development of organophosphate risk assessments and risk management decisions. EPA and USDA began implementing this pilot process in August 1998, to increase transparency and opportunities for stakeholder consultation. The documents being released to the public through this notice provide information on the revisions that were made to the diazinon preliminary risk assessments, which were released to the public through a notice published in the Federal Register on May 19, 2000 (65 FR 31902), (FRL-6588-7).

In addition, this notice starts a 60-day public participation period during which the public is encouraged to submit risk management proposals or otherwise comment on risk management for diazinon. The Agency is providing an opportunity, through this notice, for interested parties to provide written risk management proposals or ideas to the Agency on the chemical specified in this notice. Such comments and proposals could address ideas about how to manage dietary, occupational, or ecological risks on specific diazinon use sites or crops across the United States or in a particular geographic region of the country. To address dietary risk, for example, commenters may choose to discuss the feasibility of lower application rates, increasing the time interval between application and harvest ("pre-harvest intervals"), modifications in use, or suggest alternative measures to reduce residues contributing to dietary exposure. For occupational risks, commenters may suggest personal protective equipment or technologies to reduce exposure to workers and pesticide handlers. For ecological risks, commenters may suggest ways to reduce environmental exposure, e.g., exposure to birds, fish, mammals, and other non-target organisms. EPA will provide other opportunities for public participation and comment on issues associated with the organophosphate tolerance reassessment program. Failure to participate or comment as part of this opportunity will in no way prejudice or limit a commenter's opportunity to participate fully in later notice and comment processes. All comments and proposals must be received by EPA on or before April 2, 2001, at the addresses given under the ADDRESSES section. Comments and proposals will become part of the Agency record for the organophosphate specified in this notice.

Options for Development of Parametric Probability Distributions for Exposure Factors

AGENCY: Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

ACTION: Notice of availability of a final report.

SUMMARY: The notice announces the availability of a final report, Options for Development of Parametric Probability Distributions for Exposure Factors (EPA/600/R-00/058, July 2000). This report was prepared by the National Center for Environmental Assessment, within the Office of Research and Development (EPA) at the request of the Office of Emergency and Remedial Response within the Office of Solid Waste and Emergency Response, to assist them when applying probabilistic techniques in exposure assessments. The purpose of the document is to provide procedures to fit distributions to selected data from the Exposure Factors Handbook (EPA/600/P-95/002Fa-c). The procedure includes the selection of models, estimation, assessment of fit, and uncertainty. Three exposure factors were used as test cases. These included tap water intake, inhalation rates, and population mobility. The procedures used in these three exposure factors are fairly general and applicable to other factors.

ADDRESSES: The document will be made available electronically through the National Center for Environmental Assessment's web site (www.epa.gov/ncea). A limited number of paper copies will be available from the EPA's National Service Center for Environmental Publications (NSCEP), P.O. Box 42419, Cincinnati, OH 45242; telephone: 1-800-490-9198 or 513-489-8190; facsimile: 513-489-8695. Please provide your name and mailing address and the title and EPA number of the requested publication.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Jacqueline Moya, National Center for Environmental Assessment-Washington Office (8623D), U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Washington DC 20460; telephone: 202-564-3245; facsimile: 202-565-0076; email: moya.jackie@epa.gov.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Since the publication of the Exposure Factors Handbook (EPA/600/P-95/002Fa-c) in 1997, users of the Handbook have commented on the need to fit distributions to the data in the Handbook to assist them when applying methods to express assessments. This report is issued as a companion document to the Exposure Factors Handbook.

The methodology presented in the document was tested with three exposure factors: tap water, inhalation rates, and population mobility. However, the document provides a discussion on the applicability of this methodology to other exposure factors in the Exposure Factors Handbook.

The report discusses the pertinent statistical concepts and theory used and how they apply to the methodology developed for the fitting of distributions. The methodology models, estimation, assessment of fit, and uncertainty.
