Synopsis of the Inquiry

1. This Notice begins our third inquiry under section 706 of the Telecommunications Act of 1996 into "whether advanced telecommunications capability is being deployed to all Americans in a reasonable and timely fashion." To help inform this inquiry, we are simultaneously releasing our most recent data on subscribership to high-speed services. Our first and second inquiries concluded that the deployment of advanced telecommunications capability was reasonable and timely on a general, nationwide basis. Our Second Report cautioned, however, that certain groups of consumers might be particularly vulnerable to not receiving timely deployment of advanced telecommunications capability by market forces alone. Notwithstanding our conclusion that deployment is occurring in a reasonable and timely basis, we continue to take steps to remove any barriers to deployment; to remove any barriers to investment in technologies that can deliver advanced services; and to vigorously promote a competitive marketplace. In this inquiry, we re-examine the marketplace in order to determine whether advanced telecommunications capability is being deployed to all Americans in a reasonable and timely manner. This inquiry will build on the information we have collected through our previous inquiries, our continuing dialogue with the Joint Federal-State Conference on Advanced Services (Joint Conference), the Joint Conference's database of community deployment efforts, and the records developed in our proceedings designed to increase competition and promote deployment.

2. Specifically, the Notice seeks comment on four areas: (1) Whether the Commission's definition of advanced telecommunications capability remains appropriate; (2) whether advanced telecommunications capability is being deployed to all Americans; (3) whether the deployment of advanced telecommunications capability is reasonable and timely; and (4) if deployment of advanced telecommunications capability is not reasonable and timely, the actions that will accelerate deployment. Once the Commission has gathered this information, it will release a Report within 180 days detailing its findings.

Ordering Clause

3. Accordingly, it is ordered that, pursuant to section 706 of the Telecommunications Act of 1996, this Notice of Inquiry is adopted.

Secretary.
