

tribunal that the Respondent can be entrusted with a COR. Hassman, 75 FR at 8236.

Simply put, this Respondent has not accepted responsibility, made a plan, or even genuinely realized that there is a problem. The Respondent either did not understand the dangerous nature of the powerful controlled substances he was prescribing or disregarded it. To the extent the former is the case, he has done nothing to acquire the knowledge he needs to safely handle controlled substances. To the extent the latter is the case, he has not acknowledged it. What is clear is that as things stand now, this Respondent should not be entrusted with a registration until he has persuasively demonstrated that he knows what the problem is, and that he has successfully completed sufficient subject-relevant CME to understand the obligations of a DEA registrant.

A careful balancing of the public interest factors militates persuasively and conclusively in favor of the revocation of his COR sought by the Government.

Recommendation

Accordingly, the Government's Motion for a Summary Disposition based exclusively upon the Respondent's lack of state authority to handle controlled substances is sufficiently supported in fact and law to be, and herein is, granted. Further, even if the Respondent possessed sufficient state authorization to permit DEA to continue his privileges as a registrant, a careful balancing of the public interest factors enumerated under the CSA compels, as a matter of discretion, the same result required by summary disposition, to wit, that the Respondent's Certificate of Registration should be revoked and any pending applications for renewal should be denied.
