Background and Purpose

Loran is a radionavigation system first developed during World War II and operated by the USCG. The current system (Loran-C) is a low frequency hyperbolic radionavigation system approved for use in the Coastal Confluence Zone (CCZ) and as a supplemental air navigation aid. Loran-C provides navigation, location, and timing services for both civil and military air, land, and marine users in the continental U.S. (CONUS) and Alaska. The USCG operates 18 CONUS Loran Stations, 6 Alaska Loran Stations, and 24 monitoring sites.

The Draft PEIS on the Future of the Loran-C Program is a program-level document designed to provide the USCG with high-level analysis of the potential impacts on the human environment from the alternatives for the future of the Loran-C Program. The Draft PEIS evaluates the following five alternatives on the future of the USCG Loran-C Program:

- (1) No Action Alternative. The No Action Alternative refers to the current, existing conditions without implementation of the Proposed Action.
- (2) Decommission the USCG Loran-C Program and Terminate the North American Loran-C Signal.
- (3) Automate, Secure, and Unstaff Loran-C Stations.
- (4) Automate, Secure, Unstaff, and Transfer Management of the Loran-C Program to Another Government Agency.
- (5) Automate, Secure, Unstaff, and Transfer Management of the Loran-C Program to Another Government Agency to Deploy an eLoran system.

The preferred alternatives include Automate, Secure, Unstaff, and Transfer Management of the Loran-C Program to Another Government Agency; or Automate, Secure, Unstaff, and Transfer Management of the Loran-C Program to Another Government Agency to Deploy an eLoran system. It is important to note that this draft PEIS does not obligate the Coast Guard, DHS, or any other entity to undertake any specific course of action with respect to Loran.

We are requesting your comments on the environmental concerns that you may have related to the Draft PEIS. This includes suggested analyses and methodologies for use in the Draft PEIS or possible sources of data for information not included in the Draft PEIS. Your comments will be considered in preparing the final PEIS.
