

In this case, Respondent enabled unregistered individuals at an unregistered location to issue multiple controlled substance prescriptions, including at least a year's worth of controlled substance prescriptions for patient J.O. whom Respondent had never evaluated. RD, at 4–5, 16, 18, 26, 29–30; Tr. 42–43, 50, 225–26. Therefore, by giving away his hard token and two-factor authentication data to unauthorized persons, Respondent committed egregious violations of DEA's regulations that created a risk of diversion and threatened public safety. RD, at 29–31.

The Agency also concludes that revocation of Respondent's registration is necessary to deter the registrant community from engaging in similar misconduct. RD, at 30–31. There is simply no conceivable world in which it is acceptable for a practitioner to give away his or her prescribing credentials to anyone else, including a telemedicine platform. When a practitioner is awarded the privilege of prescribing controlled substances in the form of a registration, that privilege belongs to the registrant and the registrant alone—it cannot be given away. The Agency agrees with the ALJ that the interests of general deterrence support revocation, as a lack of sanction in the current matter would send a message to the registrant community that giving away a hard token and two-factor authentication credentials can be overlooked and excused. RD, at 30; see also Jeffrey Pollock, P.A., 89 FR at 54058. Revocation is also necessary to impress upon Respondent the seriousness of his misconduct and to deter him from committing the same misconduct in the future. Id.

In sum, Respondent has not offered sufficient mitigating evidence to establish that he can be trusted with the responsibility of maintaining a DEA registration. RD, at 27–33. Accordingly, the Agency will order that Respondent's registration be revoked. RD, at 33.
