

involves numerous collaborations with agencies such as MOHs, WHO, UNICEF, and the World Bank. Domestically, as the largest supplier of blood in the U.S., ARC is uniquely positioned to collaborate with Federal agencies and AIDS control program officials in blood safety.

6. ARC has access to a wealth of HIV/AIDS resources that may be adapted, both from its domestic programs and its international initiatives, such as the ARCHI tool kits and the Federation's Action with Youth, HIV/AIDS STDs: A Training Manual for Young People. Additionally, ARC and the Federation have expertise in establishing regional networking mechanisms for dissemination of information and lessons learned. For example, the "Caribbean Youth HIV/AIDS Network" (CARAN) and the "Asian Red Cross / Red Crescent Task Force on HIV/AIDS" (ART) are models that are being replicated in West Africa.

7. ARC has already developed a range of technical services domestically, including instructor training courses, communication and cooperation in sharing Red Cross HIV/AIDS information and resources on a statewide basis in the U.S., support of home care for people living with HIV/AIDS, and prevention among youth through peer-to-peer education programs. Through the Federation, ARC is uniquely positioned to disseminate this information to national AIDS control program officials in LIFE countries.

Note: Public Law 104-65 states that an organization described in section 501(c)(4) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 that engages in lobbying activities is not eligible to receive Federal funds constituting an award, grant, cooperative agreement, contract, loan or any other form.

Continuation awards within an approved project period will be made on the basis of satisfactory progress as evidenced by required reports and the availability of funds.

Use of Funds
