

end, under FVAP's guidance, states now have the option of making transactional-level data on UOCAVA ballots available through the ESB Data Standard, and the Council of State Governments is assisting with securing standardized feeds of these transactional data from members of the Overseas Voting Initiative.

This standard captures data from state databases, a process that has the advantage of more accurately assessing when ballot transactions occurred and whether ballot requests and returns were returned. The EAVS survey, as administered by the EAC, aggregates totals at the state and jurisdiction levels on ballot receipt and transmission time, but this blurs the effects experienced by voters into a single statewide estimate. Further, these data do not isolate how much timing and transmission type can influence a successful voter transaction in the process or contrast the impacts of these across two differing populations, the overseas citizen versus the active duty military voter. The ESB Data Standard is the first approach of its kind to analyze administrative data at the transactional level and attempt to identify drivers for UOCAVA voter success.

FVAP intends to leverage the momentum created from the ESB Data Standard Analysis to secure greater levels of implementation across jurisdictions with major populations of UOCAVA voters. Doing so will drastically reduce the burden on jurisdictions from the EAVS Section B data collection to only collecting high level metrics as points of validation for the ESB Data Standard.
