understood, and the impact of collection requirements on respondents can be properly assessed. The Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) is soliciting comments concerning the proposed Pretest of the "National Longitudinal Survey of Youth 2027." A copy of the proposed information collection request can be obtained by contacting the individual listed below in the ADDRESSES section of this notice.

DATES: Written comments must be submitted to the office listed in the ADDRESSES section of this notice on or before June 23, 2025.

ADDRESSES: Send comments to Nora Kincaid, BLS Clearance Officer, Division of Management Systems, Bureau of Labor Statistics, by email to BLS_PRA_Public@bls.gov.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

Office of Management and Budget clearance is being sought for the Pretest of the "National Longitudinal Survey of Youth 2027." Since the 1960s, BLS's National Longitudinal Surveys (NLS) have served as the preeminent data for understanding the labor market experiences of youth as they move from schooling to work, as well as for understanding occupational mobility, unemployment, hours worked, and earnings over the lifecycle. By following youth longitudinally for 4 or more decades, the NLS allows researchers and policymakers to investigate a wide variety of pertinent outcomes ranging from sample participants' education, employment, and family formation to their acquisition of assets, their evolving health, and their participation in government programs. The longitudinal and comprehensive approach of the NLSY cohorts provides data to economists, sociologists, and other researchers in government, academia, and private organizations to answer such questions as how wages evolve over time, how schooling and training contribute to the development and maintenance of skills to obtain and keep good jobs over one's career, how individuals navigate work and family responsibilities, and, eventually, how they make decisions about retirement.

The NLS program spans multiple cohorts: the NLS Original Cohorts of Mature Women, Young Women, Older Men, and Young Men beginning in 1966; the National Longitudinal Survey of Youth 1979 (NLSY79), the NLSY 1979 Child and Young Adult (NLSCYA), and the National Longitudinal Survey of Youth 1997 (NLSY97). Together, they provide a singular asset that has helped policymakers understand the evolution of the labor market in the United States from the last half of the 20th century to the new millennium.

The proposed collection will produce information vital for use in developing a new youth cohort, the National Longitudinal Survey of Youth 2027 (NLSY27). Such information includes response behavior of youth and their families, effectiveness of outreach materials and incentives, how the youth and their parents and caregivers comprehend the questionnaires planned for Round 1, perceived burdens to survey participation and ease of use of the NLSY27 instruments, preferences for different collection modes, and reactions to the protocols and procedures developed for NLSY27 implementation.

Respondents in previous NLSY cohorts have been asked questions that provide extensive information on employment, training, education, income, assets, marriage, fertility, health, attitudes toward work, experiences with the criminal justice system, household composition, and occupational and geographical mobility. In addition, the previous cohorts were administered cognitive assessments. BLS anticipates that the new youth cohort will cover these same topics and include assessments of cognitive skills. This Pretest will enable BLS to examine how well these many survey components perform with the target population, so that any needed adjustments can be made in preparation for Round 1.

More information about the NLSY27 cohort and current BLS plans is available at <https://www.bls.gov/nls/nlsy27.htm>.

II. Current Action

The BLS seeks approval to conduct a Pretest of the National Longitudinal Survey of Youth 2027 (NLSY27). The NLSY27 Pretest sample will yield approximately 800 completed interviews with youth aged 11-16 as of December 31, 2025, and approximately 518 interviews with their parents or caregivers. This sample will be screened and recruited from an initial sample of 13,381 housing units selected from purposively chosen survey areas. The NLSY27 Pretest will collect data for 17 weeks.

The NLSY27 Pretest will seek to interview youth and parents/caregivers selected from purposively chosen survey areas. NLSY27 will attempt to contact 13,381 households, with the
