History and Description of the Remains

On July 28, 1958, human remains representing, at minimum, two individuals were removed during the construction of a private boating club just west of the north end of Toledo Park Beach (aka Toledo Beach) in LaSalle Township, Monroe County, MI. The human remains were discovered when two construction workers uprooted the stump of an elm tree to level the surface and found the remains embedded in the roots of the tree. The workers alerted the Michigan State Police, who assigned the human remains case number 58-1951. At an unknown date, the human remains were transferred to Michigan State University. On October 4, 2017, the human remains were discovered at the University's Forensic Anthropology Laboratory. No known individuals were identified. No associated funerary objects are present.
