

the National Center for Medical Home Implementation would provide the National Healthy Tomorrows Technical Assistance Resource Center with the capacity, capability, and efficiency to foster effective examples of medical home in underserved and vulnerable communities.

During the one-year extension period, MCHB will hold discussions with the project officers of the two resource centers to develop a plan to incorporate the goals and objectives of the National Healthy Tomorrows Technical Assistance Resource Center into the FY 2013 competitive guidance for the National Center for Medical Home Implementation. This partnership will strengthen and advance the medical home model in small, community-driven projects that strive to increase access to direct services for pregnant women, infants, children and youth and promote prevention initiatives. A one-year extension will also ensure that there is no disruption in the provision of technical assistance (via site visits), training and evaluation of Healthy Tomorrows grantees as MCHB plans for this consolidation.

Stakeholders are strongly encouraged to clearly organize comments and include headings to indicate which part of the Ryan White HIV/AIDS Program the comment(s) address(es), such as Parts A, B, C, D or F.
