

173.34(e), and it did not hold pamphlets published by the Compressed Gas Association and incorporated by reference in the HMR that apply to its operations.

The current owner stated that he had assumed control of FESS during 1995. Because there has not been an inspection by an independent inspection agency since that date and FESS failed to renew its RIN when it expired, the matters discovered during RSPA's recent inspection raise questions as to the condition of any cylinder marked by FESS with a test date/year of "95" or later. These cylinders are marked with FESS's RIN number B404, bracketed by the month and year of the purported reinspection and retest date, in the following pattern:

```

      B 4
Month  Year
      4 0

```

Any person holding a compressed gas cylinder that is marked as having been last inspected and retested by FESS since 1995 should not charge or fill the cylinder without first having it inspected and retested by a cylinder requalification facility holding a currently effective RIN. Any filled cylinder that is marked as having been last inspected and retested by FESS since 1995 should be properly and safely evacuated and purged (a cylinder filled with an atmospheric gas may be vented), and taken to a DOT-authorized cylinder retest facility for visual reinspection and hydrostatic retest to determine if it qualifies for continued use in accordance with the HMR. Under no circumstances should a cylinder described in this safety advisory be filled, refilled or used for any purpose other than scrap until it is reinspected and retested by a DOT-authorized retest facility.

Cylinder requalification facilities holding a currently effective RIN are listed on the internet web site of RSPA's Office of Hazardous Materials Safety, at "http://hazmat.dot.gov/files/approvals/hydro/hydro_retesters.htm".

Persons finding or possessing cylinders described in this safety notice may contact Ms. Guadalupe Castellanos for additional information.

Issued in Washington, D.C. on January 11, 2001.

Associate Administrator for Hazardous Materials Safety.
