Proposed Project

Assessment of Environmental Health and Land Reuse Certification Training—New—Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry (ATSDR) and the National Center for Environmental Health (NCEH/ATSDR), Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

Background and Brief Description

The Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry (ATSDR) is requesting a three-year Paperwork Reduction Act (PRA) Clearance for a new Information Collection Request (ICR) entitled “Assessment of Environmental Health and Land Reuse Certification Training.” The specific activities of the ICR request is to collect participant feedback on the environmental health land reuse certificate course content developed by ATSDR and its collaborator. This information collection is funded through a contract with the National Environmental Health Association (NEHA), number 200–2013–57475.

Due to the prevalence of potentially contaminated land reuse sites such as brownfields, ATSDR is partnering with NEHA to build capacity among health agency staff through the certificate. The certificate program/training modules focus on increasing skills in Land Reuse and Redevelopment through the integration of Epidemiology, Risk Assessment, Risk Communication, and Toxicology concepts and resources. This certificate training will be hosted on ATSDR’s website as well as linked by NEHA’s existing online Learning Management System, which hosts a variety of certificate and credentialing courses. In addition, CDC’s Training and Communication Online (TCEO) (0920–0017; expiration 6/30/2019), a system that provides access to CDC educational activities for continuing education (CE), will register participants and provide continuing education credits for the certificate course.

The purpose of the information collection is to access the registration data and evaluate the impact of the certification program. The certification is geared to meet the following objectives:

- Increase participant awareness and knowledge of environmental health and land reuse;
- Increase skills and capacity of participants to engage in environmental health and land reuse work; and
- Assess participant feedback and assessment of their own increased awareness, skills, and knowledge in environmental health and land reuse.

ATSDR will request registration data from TCEO and use this data to conduct one time follow-up to assess the impact of participating in the certification, such as increased capacity of environmental health professionals to perform their work. Ultimately, ATSDR is interested in long-term benefits of the certification, such as state health partners engaging more frequently in land reuse and redevelopment projects.

Through this information collection, ATSDR would like to determine the utility and effectiveness of the certification course content. Subsequently, ATSDR will analyze the data provided by NEHA regarding participants’ job titles (e.g. LHD staff, environmental consultant, or other), the pre- and post-testing built-in components of the certification course, and a one-time collection of feedback (e.g. within 6–11 months after participation) on use of the certification materials and resources to build their capacity and skills in environmental health and land reuse.

The respondents for the certification course will largely be environmental professionals; students of environmental science, public health, or planning; and local or state health agency professionals. ATSDR may perform descriptive analysis to characterize certification course participants (e.g. by job title) and to summarize their
