CDC will review all submissions and may choose to redact, or withhold, submissions containing private or proprietary information, inappropriate language, or examples of a mass-mail campaign. CDC will carefully consider all comments submitted in preparation of the final document and may revise the final document as appropriate.

Background

On August 30, 2019, CDC published a notice (84 FR 45495) announcing the availability of a Proposed Update of the CDC's 2006 Revised Recommendations for HIV Testing of Adults, Adolescents, and Pregnant Women in Health-Care Settings. The comment period ended October 28, 2019. CDC received a request from the public to re-open the comment period.

The CDC guideline "Revised Recommendations for HIV Testing of Adults, Adolescents, and Pregnant Women in Health-Care Settings" was published on September 22, 2006 in CDC's Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report (MMWR). Since then, there have been changes in evidence related to HIV testing technologies and interventions, disease epidemiology, outcomes, implementation resources, and related guidelines. This evidence will be identified, assessed, and analyzed to inform the update of the guideline.

CDC will update the 2006 guideline based on input from subject matter experts, public health agencies, the public, and other stakeholders. The guideline development process will draw on up-to-date nationally and internationally accepted guideline
