I. Background

In October 2015, the Board issued a proposed rule to amend the maturity requirement for bank notes to be permissible investments for FCUs by removing the word “original” from the requirement that bank notes have “original weighted average maturities of less than 5 years.”¹ As the Board noted in the proposal, the authority for FCUs to invest in bank notes is derived from the provision in the Federal Credit Union Act (the Act) that permits FCUs to make deposits in, among other things, national and state banks.

The Act does not provide authority for FCUs to purchase bank notes that are not deposits. The Act, however, does not define “deposit.” NCUA’s long-standing policy has been to use the definition of deposit in the Federal Reserve Board’s Regulation D. Regulation D provides, in relevant part, that a liability of a depository institution can be a “deposit” if, among other things: (1) It is insured; (2) it is not subordinated to the claims of depositors; and (3) it has a weighted average maturity of less than five years.²

The Board stated in the proposal that removing the word “original” would better align NCUA’s requirements for bank notes with the Regulation D definition of a deposit. Further, the Board noted that this amendment would also provide FCUs with some measure of regulatory relief. By removing the word “original,” which ties the bank note’s maturity to its original date of issuance, FCUs will be permitted to select from a much larger pool of possible bank note offerings. Specifically, FCUs will be permitted to purchase bank notes that had original maturities of greater than five years but have remaining maturities of less than five years. Expanding the list of permissible offerings for FCUs will result in: (1) Cheaper execution prices; (2) flexibility for FCUs; and (3) greater efficiency for FCUs in finding suitable offerings. The weighted average maturity of less than five years will also maintain safety and soundness by avoiding excessive interest rate risk.

II. Comments on the October 2015 Proposal

The Board received eight comment letters in response to the October 2015 proposal. Generally, all of the commenters supported the rule as proposed. Several of those commenters, however, suggested ways to improve the rule.

One commenter suggested the Board eliminate the maturity requirement for bank notes completely. This commenter suggested that, because there is no statutory requirement for the Board to align the definition of deposit with Regulation D, the Board should define deposit in a way that would allow FCUs to invest in bank notes with any maturities. However, the Federal Reserve Board’s Regulation D definition provides sufficient flexibility for FCUs, and maintains safety and soundness in this context. The Board, therefore, will continue to follow NCUA’s long-standing policy to use the definition of deposit in Regulation D to determine permissible bank notes that may be purchased by FCUs under the Act.

Another commenter requested the Board issue guidance on concentration limits for FCUs investing in bank notes. The Board notes that there are no regulatory concentration limits on bank notes due to the limited exposure to FCUs that the asset class currently represents.

A final commenter suggested the Board authorize additional investments for FCUs under part 703. This comment raises an issue that is outside the scope of this rulemaking. However, part 703 was included in the Office of General Counsel’s review of one-third of NCUA’s regulations in 2015. As a result, the Board is considering whether additional amendments to part 703 are warranted. If the Board determines to promulgate such amendments, it will do so in a separate rulemaking.

III. Final Rule

For the reasons stated above, the Board is adopting as final the proposed amendment without change.

IV. Regulatory Procedures

1. Regulatory Flexibility Act

The Regulatory Flexibility Act requires NCUA to prepare an analysis of any significant economic impact a regulation may have on a substantial number of small entities (primarily those under $100 million in assets).³ This final rule will have a minimal economic impact on small credit unions as bank notes are just one small fraction of a typical investment portfolio. Accordingly, NCUA certifies the rule will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small credit unions.

² NCUA’s regulations do not require that all of these criteria be met for bank notes to be permissible investments.

³ 5 U.S.C. 603(a); 12 U.S.C. 1787(c)(1).

2. Paperwork Reduction Act

The Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 (PRA) applies to rulemakings in which an agency by rule creates a new paperwork burden or increases an existing burden.⁴ For purposes of the PRA, a paperwork burden may take the form of a reporting or recordkeeping requirement, both referred to as information collections. This final rule creates new investment options for FCUs but will not create any new burdens or increase any existing burdens. Therefore, a PRA analysis is not required.

3. Executive Order 13132

Executive Order 13132 encourages independent regulatory agencies to consider the impact of their actions on state and local interests. NCUA, an independent regulatory agency as defined in 44 U.S.C. 3502(5), voluntarily complies with the executive order to adhere to fundamental federalism principles. The final rule does not have substantial direct effects on the states, on the relationship between the national government and the states, or on the distribution of power and responsibilities among the various levels of government. NCUA has, therefore, determined that this final rule does not constitute a policy that has federalism implications for purposes of the executive order.

4. Assessment of Federal Regulations and Policies on Families

NCUA has determined that this final rule will not affect family well-being within the meaning of section 654 of the Treasury and General Government Appropriations Act, 1999, Public Law 105-277, 112 Stat. 2681 (1998).

AGENCY: Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), DOT.

ACTION: Final rule; delay of effective date, correction.

SUMMARY: This action changes the effective date of a final rule published in the Federal Register of February 4, 2016, amending Class E Airspace designated as an extension at Ithaca Tompkins Regional Airport, Ithaca, NY; and the Kingston VORTAC, Poughkeepsie, NY. This correction updates the geographic coordinates of each navigation aid and Ithaca Tompkins Regional Airport (formerly Tompkins County Airport), under Class D airspace and Class E surface area airspace to coincide with the FAA's aeronautical database. Also, Dutchess County Airport is added to the Kingston VORTAC, Poughkeepsie, NY, designation in Class E airspace designated as an extension. The Kingston VORTAC reference is removed from the Class D airspace designation. This action also adds Class D airspace to the title of this rulemaking.

DATES: This correction is effective 0901 UTC, May 26, 2016, and the effective date of the rule amending 14 CFR part 71, published on February 4, 2016 (81 FR 5902), is delayed to 0901 UTC May 26, 2016. The Director of the Federal Register approves this incorporation by reference action under Title 1, Code of Federal Regulations, part 51, subject to the annual revision of FAA Order 7400.9 and publication of conforming amendments.

Further review revealed the geographic coordinates for the airport and nav aids needed to be amended in Class D airspace and Class E surface area airspace. It is also noted that the Kingston VORTAC is erroneously listed in Class D airspace for Poughkeepsie, NY, and is removed. Also, Class D Airspace is added to the title.

Class D and Class E airspace designations are published in paragraphs 5000, 6002, and 6004, respectively, of FAA Order 7400.9Z dated August 6, 2015, and effective September 15, 2015, which is incorporated by reference in 14 CFR part 71.1. The Class D and Class E airspace designations listed in this document will be published subsequently in the Order. These are administrative corrections and do not affect the controlled airspace boundaries or operating requirements supporting operations in the Ithaca and Poughkeepsie, NY areas.
