

Revised Designation Decision that storm water discharges from the Los Alamos Urban Area (as defined by the latest decennial Census) and LANL property in Los Alamos County and Santa Fe County, New Mexico are contributing to violations of New Mexico WQS and require NPDES permit coverage under the CWA.

This Revised Designation Decision revises EPA's prior December 16, 2019, decision designating stormwater discharges from small MS4s operated by the County of Los Alamos, LANL, and the New Mexico Department of Transportation for NPDES permitting. EPA has carefully considered all record information, including stormwater discharge data and other information submitted by Los Alamos County, NMED, LANL, and the Buckman Direct Diversion, NMED's water quality assessments and lists of impaired waters, and supplemental information submitted by LANL and the County regarding EPA's previous 2019 designation decision, as well as the public comments submitted on that decision when it was proposed. EPA also conducted a site visit in September 2022 to examine first-hand the effects of the discharges and waters at issue.

Upon reconsideration of the Petition on remand, EPA has determined that stormwater discharges from small MS4s located in the Los Alamos Urban Area as defined by the latest decennial Census and MS4s located on LANL property within Los Alamos and Santa Fe Counties, New Mexico require NPDES permit coverage because the discharges are contributing to violations of NM WQS in waters of the United States. The Revised Designation Decision plus supplementary information, including the response to comments document, relating to it are available in Docket ID No. EPA-R06-OW-2023-0566 at the Federal eRulemaking Portal: <https://www.regulations.gov/> or online via the EPA Residual Designation web page at: <https://www.epa.gov/npdes/epas-residual-designation-authority>.

Abstract: This ICR is for the EPA C-MORE (Construction Material Opportunities to Reduce Emissions) Program (previously referred to as a "Low Embodied Carbon Construction Materials Program"). Under this ICR, the Program is seeking approval to collect data to fulfill a number of vital information needs as the Program begins operations. The Program is seeking approval to collected data from state and local government agencies, architectural and engineering (A&E) firms, Program grantees, entities that access Program technical assistance, and entities involved in salvage and reuse operations. From state and local government agencies, the Program is seeking information on the types and amounts of asphalt, concrete, cement, glass, and steel purchased, including reference to Environmental Product Declarations (EPDs) associated with these products. The Program is seeking similar information from A&E firms, but focused solely on concrete. EPD information, along with data on amounts purchased of each product, will provide EPA with data that can be used in setting threshold values to define categories for labels under the Program. The underpinnings of being able to label construction materials with substantially lower levels of embodied greenhouse gas emissions is collecting, assessing the quality of, and analyzing data on embodied greenhouse gas emissions of products and materials and setting substantially lower embodied carbon emissions thresholds. To do so effectively, the Agency will need to supplement available data from public data sources with direct requests for information from users about the specifications for materials purchased and the volumes purchased. The Program has already issued grants to a set of entities and is seeking approval for the grantee outcome reporting forms under this ICR. The Program is also seeking approval for a survey that can be used to assess how well Program technical assistance is meeting the needs of its customers, as well as documenting outcomes associated with use of Program technical assistance. Finally, the Program is seeking approval to collect data on materials collected and used in salvage and reuse operations to better understand the potential for such materials to reduced emissions.
