History and Description of the Remains

On an unknown date, human remains representing, at minimum, one individual were removed from a gravel pit at Mt. Sterling, Madison County, OH. Collin Hyde—presumably a Beloit

College alum of the class of 1913—donated these human remains (2013.5.1) to the Geology Department of Beloit College, which in turn transferred them to the Logan Museum of Anthropology in 2013. As the remains were found in a gravel pit in Ohio, they are most likely associated with the Glacial Kame culture, named for the cultural practice of burial in glacial-deposited gravel hills, or kames. No known individual was identified. No associated funerary objects are present.
