

crossing quotation between 9:20 a.m. and 9:29:59 a.m. could require its subscriber to comply with the Trade-or-Move Message requirement.²³ Nasdaq also noted that an ECN with a pre-opening order that locked or crossed the market could wait until the opening of the market before sending a SelectNet message to the market participants it would lock or cross.²⁴

Nasdaq stated that the proposal would not require an ECN that received a Trade-or-Move Message in excess of its subscriber's posted quotation to execute the full size of the incoming Trade-or-Move Message.²⁵ Instead, the ECN would be required to execute the incoming Trade-or-Move Message only up to the size of its subscriber's order and could then decline the remainder of the Trade-or-Move Message.²⁶ For example, if an ECN received a 5,000 share Trade-or-Move Message directed to its subscriber's 1,000 share order, the ECN would fill its customer's 1,000-share order and decline the remainder of the Trade-or-Move Message.²⁷

Nasdaq also maintained that the 5,000 share requirement must apply equally to ECNs and market makers for the proposed rule to operate effectively.²⁸ If the requirement applied to market makers but not to ECNs, a market maker or its customer could avoid the requirement by entering a locking or crossing order in an ECN for display in Nasdaq.²⁹ In addition, because the 5,000 share requirement applies equally to all market participants, including market makers, the customers of market makers, and ECN subscribers, Nasdaq maintained that the proposal is consistent with Section 15(a)(6) of the Act and does not discriminate between customers, issuers, brokers, or dealers.³⁰

The Commission believes that the proposed changes are a reasonable means to address the problem of pre-opening locked and crossed markets. By establishing a significant trading requirement for a market participant seeking to enter a locking or crossing quotation prior to the opening of the market, the proposal may reduce the frequency of pre-opening locked and crossed markets. The Commission believes that a substantial trading requirement, such as the 5,000 share Trade-or-Move Message requirement proposed by Nasdaq, rather than the 100 share or actual size trading requirement suggested by the commenters, may be useful to achieve the proposal's goal of reducing instances of pre-opening locked and cross markets.

As Nasdaq noted in its response to the commenters, an ECN with a subscriber seeking to enter a pre-opening order of less than 5,000 shares that would lock or cross the market has a number of options open to it that do not require the ECN to take a proprietary position. An ECN can reject the locking or crossing order, just as ECNs reject locking or crossing orders during normal trading hours. Alternatively, an ECN whose subscriber entered a locking or crossing order between 9:20 a.m. and 9:29:59 a.m. could require the subscriber to comply with the Trade-or-Move Message requirement.³¹ In addition, the proposal would not require an ECN that received a Trade-or-Move Message in excess of its subscriber's quotation to execute the full size of the incoming Trade-or-Move Message; instead, the ECN could trade with the incoming Trade-or-Move Message up to the size of its subscriber's order and decline the remainder of the Trade-or-Move Message.³² For these reasons, the Commission does not believe that the proposal would exclude ECNs from participating in the pre-opening market. In addition, because the proposed Trade-or-Move Message requirements will apply equally to orders placed through market makers and through ECNs, the Commission does not believe that the proposal discriminates unfairly against ECNs.

The Commission believes that Nasdaq's position that the proposal must apply equally to all market participants to operate effectively is reasonable. As argued, an exception from the Trade-or-Move Message requirements for orders entered into an ECN could allow market participants to avoid the requirements of the proposed rule by placing orders with an ECN rather than with a market maker.³³

With regard to one commenter's assertion that the proposal penalizes a market participant seeking to provide price improvement, the Commission notes that the proposal is designed to provide a more orderly opening for the Nasdaq market and to prevent efforts to manipulate the opening price of a security by entering a 100 share locking or crossing quotation.³⁴ The Commission believes that the proposal is a reasonable means to accomplish these goals. Finally, the Commission notes that market participants would be able to enter quotations that are not subject to the 5,000 share Trade-or-Move Message requirement after the market opens at 9:30 a.m.³⁵

V. Conclusion

For the reasons discussed above, the Commission finds that the proposed rule change is consistent with the Act in general, and in particular, with Sections 15A(b)(6), 15A(b)(11), and Section 11A of the Act.

It is Therefore Ordered, pursuant to Section 19(b)(2) of the Act,³⁶ that the proposed rule change (SR-NASD 99-23), as amended, is approved.

For the Commission, by the Division of Market Regulation, pursuant to delegated authority.³⁷

Deputy Secretary.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The GSP program grants duty free treatment to designated eligible articles that are imported from designated beneficiary developing countries. The GSP program is authorized by Title V of the Trade Act of 1974, as amended ("Trade Act") (19 U.S.C. 2461 et seq.) To Qualify for GSP privileges, each country must comply with several eligibility requirements set forth in sections 502(b) and 502(c) of the Trade Act (19 U.S.C. 2462(b) and 2462(cc)), including whether the country is taking steps to afford internationally recognized worker rights and the extent to which it is providing adequate and effective protection of the intellectual property rights. Once granted, GSP benefits may be withdrawn, suspended or limited by the President with respect to any article or with respect to any country. The statute also provides that if as a result of changed circumstances such country would be barred from designation as a beneficiary developing country under Act, the President shall, after notifying Congress, withdraw or suspend the designation of any country as a beneficiary country. (19 U.S.C. 2462(d)(2)).

I. Withdrawal of GSP Benefits for Belarus

In June 1997 the TPSC received a petition by the American Federation of Labor that requested a review of labor law and practice in Belarus under the auspices of the GSP program. This petition was accepted for review and public comment was received and hearings held. The United States also raised its concerns with the government of Belarus. Notwithstanding the subsequent dialogue with the Government of Belarus, the TPSC is unable to recommend that Belarus is "taking steps" to afford internationally recognized worker rights, as required by the GSP statute. Accordingly, absent a substantial improvement in Belarus labor practices, the TPSC proposes to recommend that the President withdraw all GSP benefits for Belarus.
